STATE CAPITOL OF CALIFORNIA.

By GEORGE G. RADCLIFF.

The State of California justly lays claim to having the most magnificent Capitol grounds in the country, one of the best capitol buildings for its size to be found in any of the states.

The Capitol grounds cover an area of 33.5 acres, extending from Tenth street on the west to Fifteenth street on the east, five city blocks, and from L street on the north to N street on the south, two city blocks. For further description of this beautiful park reference is made to the article in the Blue Book by State Gardener Vortriede.

The Capitol building is stated to be one of the best constructed, most substantial and beautiful capitols in the United States. It is reached from the four streets surrounding the grounds by means of broad walks and carriage drives, the ascent from the ordinary level being attained by two gently sloping grass-covered terraces. The work on the foundation of the building was commenced on September 24, 1860. The corner-stone was laid with Masonic ceremonies May 15, 1861, and the building completed under original plans as amended, which left the basement unfinished, in the year 1874. It was first occupied by the Governor and State officers November 26, 1869. The Supreme Court met there December 3, 1869, and the legislature took formal possession December 6, 1869. This occasion was observed by a general display of flags and the firing of a salute. The cost of construction up to that time was $2,600,000.

The plans of the Capitol were drawn by F. M. Butler and were selected by the Commission on May 19, 1860, as the best and most artistic of seven competitive plans submitted. Reuben Clark was appointed superintending architect, which position he held until the latter part of 1865, when he had to resign on account of ill health. On January 1, 1866, G. P. Cummings was appointed superintending architect; later A. A. Bennett succeeded Mr. Cummings, and the building was completed under his supervision.

During the years 1906-07-08, under the administrations of Governors Geo. C. Pardee and J. N. Gillett, the State Capitol Commission, composed of the Governor, the Secretary of State and the State Treasurer, expended the sum of $372,925 in completing the attic and basement, remodeling parts of the interior, installing new engine room machinery and steam heating plant, replumbing and rewiring the building throughout for telephone, telegraph and electric lighting purposes, and furnishing it with new electric light fixtures, putting in two elevators and dynamos, cementing the floors of the basement and of the third and fourth stories, tiling the second story corridor with mosaic, putting in iron stairways throughout, from the basement to the top of the dome, putting on a steel and concrete and asphaltum roof, repainting the interior and exterior of the building, etc., and making the structure as nearly fireproof as possible. Sutton & Weeks were the architects of the remodeling work, their plans having been selected by the Board of Capitol Commissioners from five competitive sets submitted.

The architecture of the building is of the florid Roman-Corinthian style. The building faces the west, has a basement and four stories surmounted by a dome, and contains 146 rooms. The remodeling work added 70 rooms to the original number. The average size of the offices on the first and second floors is 28 by 28 feet, the height 20 feet on the first floor and 18½ feet on the second. The Appellate Court room is 28 by 30 feet and 20 feet high. Some half dozen of the offices are a few feet smaller than the average given.

The exterior walls of the basement and first story are constructed of California granite, and the three upper stories are of hard burned brick covered with mastic and four coats of white paint.

The north, south and west walls are of perpendicular and horizontal construction. At the north and south ends, on the east or rear side, an L or wing 81 feet in width extends out 58 feet from the main line of the building, and from the center of the building on the same side a semi-circular wing 69 feet across at its greatest width is built out for a distance of 54 feet. This middle wing is entirely occupied by the State Library.

The following are the principal measurements of the State Capitol in detail:

Elevation of embankment upon which the Capitol stands from street level at junction of Tenth and M streets to grade at base of building	10 feet
Height of building from grade at base of Capitol to ball surmounting lantern at top of dome	237 feet
Total elevation of ball of Capitol above street level at junction of Tenth and M streets	247 feet
Length of building (greatest dimensions)	320 feet
Depth of building (greatest dimensions)	164 feet
Height of building (not including dome)	94 feet
Height of basement story (in clear, from floor to ceiling)	8 feet
Height of first story (in clear, from floor to ceiling)	20 feet
Height of second story (in clear, from floor to ceiling)	18½ feet
Height of third story (in clear, from floor to ceiling)	16½ feet
Height of fourth story (in clear, from floor to ceiling)	10½ feet
Wings at north and south ends (east side) width	81 feet
depth	58 feet
Semi-circular wing in middle (east side) width	69 feet
depth	54 feet
Space between wings at ends of building and semicircle in middle	27 feet
Area covered by building	52,480 square feet
Diameter of rotunda, first floor	53½ feet
Circumference of rotunda, first floor	168.07 feet
Height from first floor to top of rotunda	125 feet
Length of main halls	222 feet
Width of main halls	15½ feet
Size of Senate Chamber	73 x 56 feet
Size of Assembly Chamber	73 x 75 feet
Height of Senate and Assembly chambers	36½ feet

There are two entrances on the east, one each on the north and south, and one—the main entrance—on the west side of the building. The entrances to the building on the north, south and west sides are through massive arched granite porticos, supporting colonnades of iron pillars making other porticos on the second or legislative halls story. The main entrance to the building, facing the west, is through a storm door, there being also a small hardwood door on either side of the storm door. The corridor at the entrance is of Utah white sandstone trimmed with a California marble base and large panels of California onyx framed with marble. The doors of the other entrances to the building, to the portico on the front of the building on the second story, and to the entrances to the Assembly and Senate chambers are of massive hand-carved walnut.

The basement is used for storage and record rooms for the several state officers, for the state archives, and for the armory, for the receiving and shipping of goods, books, etc., by the State Janitor, State Library, Armory and other departments. The engine rooms, dynamo and meter rooms are also located in the basement.

The corridors of the first floor are beautifully tiled; a colored representation of the great seal of the State in the floor panels six feet square ornaments the entrance to each corridor. The rotunda is decorated with colored stucco work, the wall panels are scroll and figure work, and to the height of the first story is ornamented with scrolls, and representations of mining, of science, literature, art, music, seed time, and harvest. There are niches in the rotunda on the first and second floors which may some day hold marble statues, if the example is followed of the late D. O. Mills, who donated the magnificent statue of Columbus and Isabella, which stands in the center of the rotunda, facing the entrance.

Statue of Columbus Before Queen Isabella of Spain.

In the rotunda of the State Capitol. Weight about five tons. Presented to the State by Darius Ogden Mills.

COLUMBUS'S LAST APPEAL TO ISABELLA.

"I will assume the undertaking on behalf of the crown of Castile, and will pledge my jewels to defray the expenses of it, if the funds in the treasury shall be found inadequate."

On the first floor are located the offices of the Governor, Secretary of State, State Controller, Board of Equalization, State Treasurer, Clerk of the Supreme Court, Attorney General, the law library, the court room of the Second District Court of Appeal, the chambers of the judges, and the offices of the clerk, bailiff, and stenographer of the court.

On the second floor are located the offices of the Lieutenant Governor, Superintendent of Capitol Building and Grounds, State Superintendent of Schools, State Printer, State Forester, and Surveyor General; the Senate Chamber also is located in the south L and the Assembly Chamber in the north L on this floor, east of the corridor. In accordance with custom, the Senate Chamber is furnished in red and the Assembly in green, the desks of the members are of black walnut, and those of the presiding officers are of hand-carved mahogany. Neither one of these rooms is decorated, and the ceilings and walls of both are white with the exception of the lobbies under the galleries, which are painted green in the Assembly and blue in the Senate. In the Senate Chamber hangs a magnificent oil painting of Washington, and in the Assembly Chamber one of Lincoln. On the frieze over the Lieutenant Governor's chair in the Senate Chamber is the following Latin motto in gold leaf: "Senatoris est civitatis liberatam tueri," which being translated means, "It is the duty of a senator to guard the liberty of the commonwealth." On the frieze over the Speaker's chair in the Assembly is the following Latin motto: "Legislatorum est justas leges condere," which being translated means, "It is the duty of legislators to make just laws." The Senate and Assembly chambers are wainscoted with California marble, and are large, roomy, and well lighted. The acoustics are excellent. Accommodations are provided for the presiding officers, clerks, and sergeants-at-arms of the two houses in rooms adjacent to the chambers, and a large gallery in each house for the sightseeing public.

The corridor of this, the second floor, is tiled with marble mosaic, in panels; in each corner and the center are representations of bunches of California poppies.

The Library has a large semicircular room off the corridor on this floor; in fact, the library has been assigned rooms on every floor of the building, and occupies about thirty per cent of the floor space of the entire Capitol.

On the third floor are the galleries of the Senate and Assembly chambers, and the offices of the State Board of Control, Adjutant General, Horticultural Commissioner, State Veterinarian, State Board of Health, State Commission in Lunacy, and State Engineering Department.

The fourth floor, with the exception of the space occupied by the library, has been arranged for legislative committee rooms and employees' offices, which were much appreciated by the members of the last two legislative sessions, as heretofore there had not been enough rooms in the Capitol to provide a sufficient number of committee rooms for the accommodation of the Legislature. But owing to the crowded condition of many of the departments, it is necessary to use most all these committee rooms during the recesses of the legislative sessions for relief purposes.

From the dome the scenic beauty impresses the visitor. The view will repay one for climbing the iron stairs from the fourth floor level to the top of the dome. If one should get tired, he can stop at the first or second landings, one quarter or half-way to the top, and walk around the outside of the dome, at either of those stations, and the view will be delightful; but if he will continue on and climb the winding stairs to the very top he will obtain a magnificent panoramic view of the Sacramento Valley and its surrounding mountain ranges. On the east can be seen the Sierra Nevada, on the west the Coast Range, away off to the north the snow-capped peak of Mount Shasta, and to the south, Mount Diablo. The course of the Sacramento and of the American rivers can be traced for miles through the valley to where the American is seen to empty into the Sacramento at the northwest corner of the capital city, and their course as one river can be traced for miles on its winding way towards the sea.

The Legislature of 1913 provided for the decoration of the Capitol rotunda with mural paintings "depicting historical epoch periods" of the State. Arthur F.

Mathews, generally regarded as California's foremost painter, was engaged for the task—probably the most ambitious ever attempted with the Golden State as its theme.

To each period the artist has devoted a triptych, representing, in order: The coming of the "White Gods," as the white men were regarded by the aborigines; the Spanish occupation and the building of the missions; the inpour of civilization following the discovery of gold, and the swift industrial development of the State; and, finally, the achievements of civilization in California in the present day, and what it is to be in the future.

Definiteness of epochal periods has not been maintained, the circle of walls giving rare opportunity for a continuity in which the painter could the more freely develop his theme. The peaceful conquest of the favored land and the urge of worthy endeavor are therefore carried forward in a procession of symbolism from the first panel to the last.

To the right of the State Library entrance is depicted "The Landing of the Gods." The natives, in consternation, are holding up their hands in attitudes of peace. A more frightened Indian, in his uncertainty, has sought refuge behind a rock.

In the second panel comes the Spirit of Adventure, in the Knight Errant vainly seeking the Fleece, or who might be one of the Hospitalier bearing the sword of justice. The Angel of Light is carrying the secrets of life. The primitive woman with her boy but half understands the sympathetic touch of the Christian monk behind her. She perhaps feels the glamor of the procession heedlessly passing; she feels but does not know. The angel passes silently, like a will o' the wisp—still the native mother does not know; nor does she know or see the heavily laden bearer who swiftly but stoically follows "The Light," abreast the knight.

In the third panel is the discovery of San Francisco Bay. A handful of Spanish pioneers, soldiers and friars—worn by travel and ill with scurvy—discover the inland sea. They barely count in bulk with the open country; still they are laying the foundation of a great state and its teeming multitudes.

The next triptych, devoted to the Spanish period, begins with the time when the Spanish-Mexican is using California chiefly as a grazing land.

The center panel shows in the background the California mission—composite of three mission structures—expressive of the spirit of the Franciscans. In the garden in the fore, natives are working the soil under the guidance of one of the brothers. It is foreordained that both may labor as sincerely and arduously as they will, but the earth shall soon go back to the sere and yellow under their hands, for the native is not equal to the task set by destiny. The work they do is not to be lasting; it is to pass to others; it is to be left to another to accomplish.

The Spanish period concludes with the giving over of the country to "That Other Spirit." The crowd standing on the shore of Monterey Bay and by the Spanish custom house, awaits the landing of Commodore Sloat and a change of nationalization. The Mexican flag is to give way to that of the United States of America. Native and priest stand somewhat isolated, for already they have been pushed to one side.

Triptych three is truly, perhaps, the head of the procession of the civilizing of California. Fortune, whom all men pursue, swings in her flight past the aborigine, who stands, a majestic figure, in contemplation of the wild inrush of the gold-seekers. The shadow side of the ball is toward him; the swifter, more virile race presses close.

The discovery of gold in the State, pictured in the left leaf of this triptych, has done its work in hastening the inevitable—the substitution of one of nature's creatures for another in the scheme of things, and finally the creation or erection of a modern civilization in California, typified in the third panel by the modern American city and all it means in success and failure of our culture, science and mechanics. This symbol of a people's work is a coarser, a more inchoate product, but is a step toward the Dream City of Beauty and Justice which dominates the concluding triptych.

This may, then, in other words, be described as representing the consummate labor of humanity—the end toward which the civilization of California is, in common with all civilization, striving. The first panel, with its care-free, joyous festival spirit, contrasts with the third leaf, which is expressive of achievement—of the matured works of old age. In the center panel, the city bordering the sea forms a setting for the colossal statue of Contemplation, at which the worker is still laboring—for we are never quite sure that a work is accomplished—and is the embodiment through the arts of human desires.

The final panel—the Dream City of Beauty and Justice, or the goal toward which Endeavor is driven by the urge in the white man—holds a wealth of symbolism. The four columns, standing alone and strewn about with fragments and “improvised” houses or sheds, might be the beginning of a new pile, to be created for the glorification of a renewed spirit of humanity; or they may be interpreted as the remains of a past cult. This panel might, therefore, be regarded as both the beginning and the end of the story or ring of mural paintings.

STATE CAPITOL PARK.

By WILLIAM VORTRIEDE, State Gardener.

The grounds within which the California State Capitol building stands are in the heart of the city of Sacramento, extending from Tenth street on the west to Fifteenth street on the east, and from L street on the north to N street on the south. They take in ten blocks in all including the space which otherwise would be occupied by intersecting streets, and comprise an area of 33.05 acres. The western 11.90 acres were donated by the city of Sacramento to the State, and the eastern portion, containing 21.15 acres, were purchased by the State for the sum of $100,000.

The grounds are well planted with trees and shrubs whose grateful shade is enjoyed by many visitors. Their large size, reached within a comparatively few years, and their manifest health and vigor, speak volumes for the fertile soil in which they grow and the fine climate they enjoy.

Two magnificent terraces set off the imposing Capitol building to its best advantage. They lead all around the structure and are planted with geometric precision in harmony with the Grecian architecture. East of the Capitol the planting is more in the natural style.

All continents and all climes have contributed to the wealth of choice plants in these grounds. Here are found the date palms of Asia, Africa and South America; the fan palms of Asia, North America and Australia; the bamboo, from Asia; the Dracæna, from Australia; the pampas grass, from South America; the cedar of the Himalaya mountains, the cedar of Lebanon, and the incense cedar of the California mountains; the stone pine of Italy and the Aleppo pine of southern France; the cypress of North America, southern Europe, and eastern Asia; the Araucaria of South America and Australia; the fir tree of Norway and California; the Cunninghamia, maidenhair tree, and Cryptomeria, from China and Japan; the gun tree, rubber tree, silk oak, Acacia, and bottle-brush, from Australia; the orange, lemon, loquat, persimmon, and pomegranate, from Europe and Asia; the walnut, from Asia and America; the horse-chestnut, from Asia; the butternut and hickorynut, from America; the elm, from Europe and America; the pepper-tree, from South America; the olive, from Europe; the laurel, from Europe and California; the Camellia, from Asia; the strawberry bush, from Europe; the Pittosporum, from Australia; the magnolia, from America and Asia; the varnish tree, from Asia; the locust, from America; the tulip tree and Catalpa, from the East; the box elder, from the East and West; the redwood, from the West, and many more that could be named. All find a congenial home on these beautiful grounds, with their rich soil and mild and equal climate.

In about the center of the grounds is a plot of half an acre, densely planted with eastern North American trees. This is an interesting grove of trees and shrubs, collected, planted and dedicated to the State of California by the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic. They are historic trees, collected from the most prominent battlefields of the Civil War. We find here the black walnut, the shell-bark hickory, the ash, the water oak, the willow oak, the blackjack oak, the silver maple, the red maple, the rock maple, the tulip tree, the basswood tree, the mulberry, the juniper, the black locust, the American white elm, the slippery elm, the Wishoo elm, and the dogwood.

The three acres in the southeast portion of the Park, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, N street and Capitol avenue, will be used exclusively for California flora. Here the plants of the desert, such as the many different and interesting cacti and yuccas, plants loving sunshine to its fullest extent, will meet the plants preferring moisture and coolness of shade, such as the many different ferns, the azaleas, and the huckleberries.

The Sequoia gigantea from the Sierra Nevada here meets its only relative, the Sequoia sempervirens of the northern coast ranges; the sugar pine of the high Sierra greets the ocean-spray-loving Monterey pine; the valley and Douglas oaks of the many dry valleys stand beside the tanbark and holly oak of the cooler and more moist Coast Range; and the almost extinct Torrey pine and the silver fir, Abies venusta, meet the omnipresent bull pine and Digger pine. Most of the plants of this timely and interesting planting will be furnished by the California orders of Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West.

Screen and Ladder Investigation.

To date there have been 130 surveys for fish ladders made. Sixty legal notices have been served and blue prints for ladders furnished the owners of dams. Reports that 59 ladders have been installed and dams and falls removed have been filed with the commission.

Five hundred and twenty-three surveys have been made for screens to be installed in canals and ditches diverting water from the streams of the State. Four hundred forty-one legal notices have been served on the owners of canals and ditches, and reports that 256 screens have been installed have been received.

The number of screens installed and ladders constructed, above given, does not represent the number actually in, as it has been impossible to obtain exact reports from every district. Those given are only the number that have been actually reported as being completed.

Laws for the regulations of horse breeding on scientific lines have long been advocated by the best authorities, but it is only within the last eight years that a serious attempt has been made to secure a larger supply of well-bred horses of recognized breeds, the first step in this direction being taken by the State of Wisconsin in 1896. Since then each year has seen an advance in the number of states joining in this important movement, and at the present time over eighteen have enacted stallion registration laws.

CALIFORNIA STATE REDWOOD PARK COMMISSION.

Terms of above expire, but they are hold-overs.

The California State Redwood Park, administered by a commission of five members, consists of approximately 8,400 acres, of which 2,500 acres is virgin Redwood. The Park is crossed by numerous streams, which are bordered by ferns, mosses, and water plants. On Opal Creek, near the center of the basin-shaped park, are located the Warden's headquarters and the rustic buildings constructed for the accommodation of visitors. The headquarters are connected with Boulder Creek by a telephone line and by a daily stage, which carries mail during the summer months. Besides the Boulder Creek road, the commission has recently acquired a "Pan-Handle" road, 300 feet wide and 12 miles long, connecting between Saratoga and San Jose with the park. From the Warden's headquarters numerous trails and walks lead to many points of interest. Of California State Redwood Park, United States Senator Perkins said: "I have traveled through the forests of Mariposa and I have driven through the wonderful forests of Southern Germany, yet I have never seen the equal of California State Redwood Park."

David Starr Jordan, President of Stanford University, has said: "California State Redwood Park is a leaf from the greatest virgin forests, a sample of the Redwoods as they have been for ten thousand years, and one which may be preserved for all time. Besides this, it is a botanical garden where the wax myrtle, the California nutmeg tree, the California whortleberry, the clintonia, the oxalis and all the other plants which follow the redwoods may be likewise saved for our descendants."

THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

By CHARLES G. JOHNSON, Superintendent.

The State Department of Weights and Measures was established under the provisions of chapter 597, passed by the session of 1913, and generally known as the Weights and Measures Act.

The act provides that the Governor shall appoint a Superintendent of Weights and Measures, whose term of office shall be for four years, at an annual salary of $3,600. The act provides for the establishment of a standard of weights and measures in the State of California to regulate weights and measures, and weighing and measuring instruments and devices, and provides for the inspection and sealing thereof; provides for the use and sale of various weights and measures and weighing and measuring instruments and devices; provides for the inspection, measurement and weighing of goods, commodities, wares, packages, and amounts of commodities kept for sale or in process of delivery; prevents the sale of goods, wares and merchandise by false weights and measures; provides penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act; provides for the admission, in evidence, of copies of the State's standards of weights and measures; provides for the appointment of county sealers of weights and measures; provides for the enforcement and carrying into effect of the provisions of the act; also provides for the appointment of a deputy superintendent of weights and measures, and fixes his salary at $150 per month, and defines the powers and duties of such officer; also makes an appropriation for carrying the law into effect.

On the tenth of July, 1914, the Governor appointed a Superintendent of Weights and Measures, who immediately entered upon the duties of his office, established a uniform standard of weight and measure throughout the State, and provided the State with a set of standard weights and measures certified to by the Federal Department at Washington. From these State's standards he caused to be made certified copies of same for distribution in the various counties throughout the State, and with these copies the county sealers compare all weights and measures used in all avenues and mediums of trade.

The superintendent has adopted a set of tolerances, or allowable errors in weighing and measuring apparatus, as well as specifications for the building of weighing and measuring apparatus permitted for use in the State.

The Net Container Act is a bill to provide for the indicating of the net quantity of foodstuffs and stuffs intended to be used or prepared for use as food for human beings when sold or offered or exposed for sale in containers, and provides penalties for the violation thereof. It is designed to protect purchasers of any commodities within its provisions against deception as to quantity or amount of commodity purchased. The enforcement of this act comes under the direction of the Superintendent of Weights and Measures.

The proper introduction of the regulation of uniform weights and measures and net contents of containers is calculated to obviate the general commercial unrest caused by designing persons in their endeavor to make discriminatory weights and measures the basis of competition, instead of the actual delivery of an honest weight or measure. It is designed to protect the honest merchant from the nefarious practices of unscrupulous merchants, and to offer protection to the people in general against deception by use of fraudulent weights and measures.

University Farm.

By the Legislature of 1905 provision was made for the purchase of a farm, to be used by the College of Agriculture of the University of California, for instruction in agriculture and for agricultural experiment. In 1906 a tract of 780 acres, near Davis, in Yolo County, was selected and purchased; its improvement and equipment was at once begun, and is still continuing along the lines laid down by the original act. Three types of instruction are offered:

First. Short courses for farmers, given during October and November of each year; these courses were first given in the fall of 1908.

Second. Courses for University students in the College of Agriculture, given during the second semester of the college year; first offered in 1909.

Third. The University Farm School, offering a three-year course in agriculture to young men who do not care to take a college course. The school opened in January, 1909; during the year 1914-15 more than 267 students were enrolled. The school year is about eight months in length.

The appropriations made for the purchase and equipment of the farm, and for its support, up to June 30, 1913, are as follows: Legislature of 1905, $150,000; 1907, $132,000; 1909, special appropriations, $137,000; in general appropriation bill, $88,500; 1911, special appropriations, $112,844.87; in general appropriation bill, $115,000; 1913, special appropriations, $135,000; also a portion of the moneys provided by the general appropriation bill for 1913-1915 for the College of Agriculture.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS.

The State of California supports seven State Normal Schools, for the education and training of common school teachers. In the order of establishment, they are San Jose, Los Angeles, Chico, San Diego, San Francisco, Santa Barbara, and Fresno. These institutions are maintained at an annual cost of approximately a quarter of a million dollars. They graduate yearly between 700 and 900 highly equipped grammar school teachers, who at once enter the educational service of the people, raising the standard of teaching efficiency throughout the State, and, because of the similarity of their training, tending to make uniform the instruction given to all pupils in the first eight grades of the public schools. At the present time all of the normal schools have a total enrollment of 2,901 in the normal departments and 2,641 in the training departments.

The first normal school, that of San Jose, was established in San Francisco by act of the Legislature in May, 1862. It opened soon after with five students enrolled, with a course of only one year beyond the grammar schools. In 1870 the course was lengthened to two years beyond the grammar school. At the present time it is two years beyond the best high school course, or six years beyond the grammar schools. In 1871 the school was removed to San Jose, where it has since remained. Within three years from the date of the opening of the school the enrollment had reached 300.

The next normal school to be established was that at Los Angeles, in 1881, which opened soon after. Then followed that of Chico in 1889; San Diego in 1897; San Francisco in 1899; Santa Barbara in 1909; and Fresno in 1911. A more detailed statement under the name of each school follows, prepared by its president.

The Legislature of California convenes in regular session, in the State Capitol at Sacramento, on the first Monday after the first day of January, in the odd-numbered years. It is divided into two houses, called the Senate and the Assembly. Senators are elected for four years—those from the even-numbered districts and those from the odd-numbered districts being elected alternately every two years. Members of the Assembly are elected every two years.

The Senate is composed of forty members, presided over by the Lieutenant Governor, who is ex officio President of the Senate. A President pro tempore is elected by the members.

The Assembly is composed of eighty members, presided over by a Speaker, elected from their own number. A speaker pro tempore is also elected.

Section two hundred and sixty-six of the Political Code of the State of California as amended January 11, 1909 (Stats. 1909, p. 1), reads as follows:

266. Members of the Legislature shall receive the sum of one thousand dollars as compensation for services during each regular session, payable as follows: Ten dollars per day payable weekly during such regular session until one thousand dollars is paid. In the event of final adjournment before the said one thousand dollars is paid, then the balance shall be immediately payable. For each special or extraordinary session they shall receive ten dollars per day for a term not exceeding thirty days, payable weekly. Members shall receive for each regular, special or extraordinary session ten cents per mile for each mile of travel to and from their residences and the place of holding the session.

See also Constitution of California, article IV, section 23.

In addition members are allowed for contingent expenses not exceeding $25 at each session.

Time and Duration of Sessions of Legislature.

Sec. 2. The sessions of the Legislature shall be biennial, unless the Governor shall, in the interim, convene the Legislature, by proclamation, in extraordinary session. All sessions, other than extraordinary, shall commence at twelve o'clock M., on the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding the election of its members, and shall continue in session for a period not exceeding thirty days thereafter; whereupon a recess of both houses must be taken for not less than thirty days. On the reassembling of the Legislature, no bill shall be introduced in either house without the consent of three fourths of the members thereof, nor shall more than two bills be introduced by any one member after such reassembling. (Amendment adopted October 10, 1911, article IV, section 2, Const. Cal.)

Following is a list of Senators and Assemblymen for the forty-first session of the Legislature, convened January 4, 1915, and adjourned May 9, 1915; also the statutory officers of the same session:

Number of United States Senators—Direct Election of by the People.

Sec. 3. 1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislatures. (Proposed by Sixty-second Congress, second session; proclaimed May 31, 1913.)

Election of United States Senators.

Sec. 20. United States Senators shall be elected by the people of the State in the manner provided by law. (Amendment adopted November 3, 1914, by electors of California.)

Five days after the convening of the first Legislature, and on December 20, 1849, two United States Senators were elected—John C. Fremont and William M. Gwin. They received their credentials and proceeded to Washington, but it was not until September 10, 1850, the day after the admission of California into the Union, that they were sworn in as members of the Senate. Fremont drew the short term, to expire March 4, 1851, and Gwin the long term, to expire March 4, 1855. They served out the periods for which they had been elected.

As the law stood until July 25, 1866, the time for the meeting of the joint convention of the State Senate and Assembly was fixed by a joint resolution of the two houses, and by reason of inability to agree there were sessions that failed to elect a United States Senator, and the State was at times with but one representative in the upper house of Congress.

REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS.

Apportionment.—The Constitution of 1849 provided that at the election on November 13th of that year there should be elected to Congress two Representatives at large. Until 1861 the State was represented in Congress by two Representatives elected at large, and there was no official districting. Under the apportionment based on the Federal census of 1860 California was entitled to three Representatives, and in 1861 the state central committees of the various political parties agreed to place on each ticket an additional candidate for Congressman. In that year and in 1863 the three members were elected at large.

The Legislature by an act of April 1, 1864, apportioned the State into three congressional districts, the first embracing the southern, the second the middle, and the third the northern counties.

By an act of March 30, 1872, the State was divided into four congressional districts; by an act of March 13, 1883, into six; by an act of March 11, 1891, into seven; by an act of March 23, 1901, into eight; and by an act of January 2, 1912, into eleven.

Time of Election.—April 26, 1851, the Legislature passed an act fixing the time for holding the general State elections as the first Wednesday in September of each year, except in years in which presidential elections were to be held, when the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November was set.

The following acts, fixing the time for the election of Representatives in Congress, have been passed since by the Legislature: April 24, 1852, setting the time at the general election in 1852, and each second year thereafter; April 15, 1858, setting the time at the general election in 1859, and each second year thereafter; April 20, 1863, setting the time at the general election in 1863, and each second year thereafter, except that in leap years it should be held at the time of the presidential elections; April 1, 1864, setting the time at the presidential election in that year, and each second year thereafter at the general elections; March 13, 1866, setting the time at the general election in 1867; March 11, 1868, setting the time at the presidential election in that year; April 4, 1870, setting the time at the general election in 1871; April 1, 1872, setting the time at the presidential election in that year.

Congress passed an act on March 3, 1873, fixing the time for the election of Representatives in Congress at the presidential election in 1876, and each second year thereafter on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. The original Political Code adopted by the Legislature of 1871–1872 provided for the election of Representatives at the general election in 1873 and each second year thereafter. Congress, by an act on May 21, 1874, repealed the Federal law so far as the election of Congressmen in California was concerned, and the code provision governed the election in 1875. The election in 1876 was held in conformity with the Federal law. Congress, on June 11, 1878, passed an act that the congressional election in California should be held on the first Wednesday in September, 1879. Since that time the elections have been held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in each even-numbered year, in conformity with the provisions of the Federal law.

The Secretary of State refused to issue a certificate of election to Pacheco, his majority being only one vote, and his opponent, Wigginton, having taken steps to contest the election. At the January term, 1877, the state Supreme Court directed that a peremptory writ of mandate issue to the secretary, commanding him to canvass the vote as it had been transmitted to him by the county clerks, and to issue a certificate to the person thus shown to have received the highest number of votes. Accordingly a certificate of election was issued to Pacheco and he proceeded to Washington and served until the House sustained Wigginton's contest. Wigginton took the oath on February 7, 1878, and served out the remainder of the term.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following is a synopsis of the constitutional provisions and laws relating to the principal executive State offices, which have been in force since the organization of the State government:

Governor.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The original Constitution provided that at the election at which it was to be submitted to the people—November 13, 1849—there should be elected a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, members of the Legislature, and two members of Congress. All the State officers, except members of the Legislature were to take office December 15th, following, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and their term was fixed at two years. The first Legislature, on April 11, 1850, passed a law providing for the election of the next Governor at the general election in 1851; and by an act passed on March 23, 1850, the general elections were set for the first Monday in October of each year. On April 26, 1851, an amendatory act was passed, changing the time for holding the general State elections to the first Wednesday in September of each year. The amendments to the Constitution, in 1862, extended the term of office of the Governor to four years from the first Monday in December next after election, and the general State elections were set for the first Wednesday in September in each alternate year, commencing with 1863. The Constitution adopted in 1879 provided for the election of the first Governor under it on the first Wednesday in September, 1879, for a term of three years from the first Monday after the first day of January, 1880; that a general State election should be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1880, and each second year thereafter. The term of office of Governor, commencing with the one elected in 1882, was fixed at four years from the first day of January following the election.

SALARY.—The Constitution of 1849 fixed the salary of the Governor at $10,000 per annum, to so remain until changed by the Legislature. On May 1, 1851, the salary was fixed at $6,000; on May 11, 1852, at $10,000; on April 21, 1856, at $6,000; and on May 6, 1861, at $7,000. The Constitution as adopted in 1879 fixed the salary at $6,000, but an amendment to section 19 of article V, adopted November 3, 1908, raised the salary to $10,000 per annum.

Lieutenant Governor.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The Constitution always provided for the election of a Lieutenant Governor at the same time as the Governor and for the same term. The Lieutenant Governor has always been ex officio President of the Senate, and for a time in the history of the State, acted also as Warden of the State Prison. In the event of a vacancy in the office of Governor it was provided that the Lieutenant Governor should be promoted to that office, and the President pro tem. of the Senate should act as Lieutenant Governor. Under the present Constitution, a vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor is filled by appointment by the Governor. (People ex rel. John C. Lynch vs. James H. Budd, Governor, 114 Cal. 168.)

SALARY.—The original Constitution fixed the compensation of the Lieutenant Governor at $32 per day during the session of the Legislature, with mileage. By an act passed May 1, 1851, the compensation was fixed at $15 per day and mileage; on April 21, 1856, at $12 per day and mileage; and on April 23, 1880, at $10 per day and mileage; these per diems to be paid only during the legislative session. By constitutional amendment adopted November 3, 1908, the salary of the Lieutenant Governor was fixed at $4,000 per annum.

Secretary of State.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The Constitution of 1849 provided that the Secretary of State should be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to hold office for two years. The constitutional amendment of 1862 provided that the Secretary of State should be elected by the people at the same time the Governor was chosen and for the same term. Under the present Constitution the Secretary of State is elected at the same time and for the same term as the Governor.

SALARY.—On March 5, 1850, a law was passed fixing the salary of the Secretary of State at $7,000. On May 1, 1851, it was fixed at $3,500; and on May 6, 1861, at $4,000. The Constitution as adopted in 1879 fixed the salary at $3,000, but by amendment adopted November 3, 1908, the salary was fixed at $5,000 per annum.

Treasurer.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The first Constitution provided that the Legislature should, in joint convention, at the first session, elect a Treasurer, to hold office for the same term as the Governor; and that thereafter the office should be filled by election by the people. The first Legislature, by an act passed April 11, 1850, provided for the election of a Treasurer at the general election in 1851, and each second year thereafter. The amendment of 1862 lengthened the term of the Treasurer to four years, from the first Monday in December next after the election, which was set at the same time as the election of Governor. Under the present Constitution the Treasurer is elected at the same time and for the same term as the Governor.

SALARY.—The first Legislature, by an act passed March 5, 1850, fixed the salary of the Treasurer at $9,000. On May 1, 1851, it was fixed at $5,000; on May 11, 1852, at $4,500; on April 21, 1856, at $3,500; and on May 6, 1861, at $4,000. The Constitution adopted in 1879 fixed the salary at $3,000, but it was raised to $5,000 per annum by amendment adopted in 1908.

Controller.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The same provisions as relate to the Treasurer.

SALARY.—By an act of March 5, 1850, the salary of the Controller was fixed at $8,000; May 1, 1851, at $5,000; May 11, 1852, at $4,500; April 21, 1856, at $3,500; May 6, 1861, at $4,000; and under the new Constitution as originally adopted, at $3,000; as amended in 1908, $5,000.

Attorney General.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The same provisions as relate to the Treasurer.

SALARY.—The salary of the Attorney General has been fixed as follows: By an act of March 5, 1850, $7,000; May 1, 1851, $1,000; May 11, 1852, $2,000; May 6, 1861, $4,000; by the new Constitution $3,000, as originally adopted; as amended November 3, 1908, $6,000 per annum.

Surveyor General.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The same provisions as relate to the Treasurer.

SALARY.—The salary of the Surveyor General has been fixed as follows: By an act of March 5, 1850, $750; May 1, 1851, $500; May 11, 1852, $2,000; and also $2,000 as Register of the State Land Office. The present Constitution originally fixed the salary at $3,000, but was amended in 1908, fixing it at $5,000 per annum.

Clerk of the Supreme Court.

ELECTION AND TERM.—A law was passed February 14, 1850, establishing the office of Clerk of the Supreme Court, and providing that the first incumbent should be elected by the Legislature, that the next Clerk should be elected by the people at the first county election, to be held on the first Monday in April, 1850, to hold office until January 1, 1851. On April 11, 1850, an amendatory law was passed, providing for the election of a Clerk at the general election in October, 1850, and every two years thereafter, to take office on January 1st following each election. On April 28, 1851, a law was passed providing that the Clerk elected in October,

1850, should hold office until January 1, 1853, and that a Clerk should be elected at the general election in 1852, and every two years thereafter, to hold office commencing on the first day of January next after the election. On April 24, 1858, an act was passed providing that a Clerk should be elected at the general election in 1859, and each second year thereafter, to hold office for two years from the first day of January after his election. On April 22, 1863, an act was passed providing for the election of the Clerk at the same time as the Governor, and to hold office for four years from the first Monday in December after his election. At the election held October 10, 1911, a Constitutional Amendment was adopted empowering the Supreme Court to appoint the Clerk from and after the expiration of the term of the present incumbent. (See section 21, article VI, Constitution of California.)

SALARY.—The salary of the Clerk was $4,000 until the adoption of the new Constitution, when by legislative act it was fixed at $3,000. The Legislature of 1909 increased the salary to $5,000 per annum.

Superintendent of State Printing.

ELECTION AND TERM.—By an act passed January 8, 1850, the office of State Printer was created, to be filled and controlled by the Legislature; the term was fixed at two years. The act of April 11, 1850, provided that the Printer should be elected by the Legislature for the same term. On April 29, 1852, a law was passed abolishing the office of State Printer, and the Governor and Controller were authorized to let a contract to do the State printing for a period of nine months from May 1, 1852. On May 1, 1854, the office of State Printer was again created, and it was provided that it should be filled by election by the then Legislature, and that at the general election in 1855, and every two years thereafter, that officer should be elected by the people. On April 22, 1863, provision was made for the election of the Printer by the people, at the same time as the Governor, and for the same term. On March 26, 1872, the office of Superintendent of State Printing was created, and that law took effect at the expiration of the term of the then State Printer. The appointment was to be made by the Governor on or before the first Monday in September, 1875, and no term of office was specified. By an act of March 10, 1891, the Superintendent of State Printing was made an elective office. By an act of April 26, 1911, the Superintendent of State Printing is to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and to hold office at the pleasure of the Governor.

SALARY.—Originally the compensation of the State Printer was governed by the amount of work performed, but under the law creating the office of Superintendent, the salary was fixed at $3,000. On March 30, 1874, it was reduced to $2,400, and on March 9, 1885, it was increased again to $3,000. On February 22, 1909, the Legislature increased the salary to $5,000 per annum, to take effect immediately.

Superintendent of Public Instruction.

ELECTION AND TERM.—The original Constitution directed the Legislature to provide for the election by the people of a Superintendent of Public Instruction, to hold office for three years. On April 11, 1850, an act was passed providing for the election of the Superintendent at the general election in 1850, and every third year thereafter. By an act passed May 1, 1851, it was provided that at the general election in 1853 the people should elect a Superintendent for the constitutional term, and that the Superintendent who had been elected in 1850 should hold office until January 1, 1854, and thereafter the term should be three years from the first day of January next after the election. The constitutional amendment of 1862 provided that the Superintendent should be elected at a special election, at which only judicial and school officers should be elected, and that the date of the election should be designated by the Legislature of 1863. The term of office was fixed at four years from the first day of December next after election. On March 21, 1863, a law was passed providing that such special election should be held on the third Wednesday in October, 1863, and every second year thereafter. The present Constitution provides that the Superintendent shall be elected at the same time as the Governor, and for the same term.

By an act of the Legislature, chapter 398, Session Law of 1911, all school offices were made non-partisan and at the ensuing election held on November 3, 1914, the Superintendent of Public Instruction and all other school officers were elected by the people of the state as non-partisans, all party lines being eliminated for school offices.

SALARY.—On May 11, 1852, the salary of the State Superintendent was fixed at $4,500, to be paid from the commencement of the term of office then existing. On April 25, 1856, it was fixed at $3,500, and on May 6, 1861, it was reduced to $3,000, and was not changed by the adoption in 1879 of the present Constitution, which provides that he shall receive the same salary as the Secretary of State. The amendment to section 19 of article V of the Constitution, adopted in 1908, carries with it an increase of the salary of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to $5,000 per annum.

Adjutant General.

ELECTION AND TERM.—On April 10, 1850, an act was passed providing that the Legislature should elect on joint ballot an Adjutant General and a Quartermaster General, each to rank as a brigadier general, and to hold office until January 1, 1854. April 25, 1855, an act was passed providing that the Legislature should elect on joint ballot a Quartermaster General, who should perform the duties of Adjutant General as well, with rank of brigadier general, and to hold office for four years. The first election was to take place on or after the first day of April, 1858, when the term of the then incumbent would expire. May 9, 1861, an act was passed providing that the Adjutant General should be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard (the Governor), by and with the consent of the Senate, and to hold office for the same time as the Secretary of State. April 24, 1862, the term of office was fixed at two years by an amendatory statute; by act of April 25, 1863, the term was increased to four years. The Political Code now provides that the Adjutant General shall be appointed by the Governor, to hold office at the pleasure of the appointing power. The office of Adjutant General also carries with it the rank of brigadier general.

SALARY.—The act of April 10, 1850, fixed the salary at $1,000 for the Adjutant General and $2,000 for the Quartermaster General; April 25, 1855, the salary of the Quartermaster General and Adjutant General was fixed at $3,000; May 9, 1861, the salary of the Adjutant General was fixed at $1,000, but on the 17th of that month it was raised to $2,000 by an amendatory act. By act of April 24, 1862, the salary was fixed at $3,000, at which figure it remained until March 22, 1909, when the Legislature increased it to $3,600 per annum.

State Board of Equalization.

By an act of the Legislature, approved April 4, 1870, a State Board of Equalization was created, to consist of the Controller of the State and two members to be appointed by the Governor.

This remained the law until the establishment of the codes in 1872, wherein section 352 of the Political Code provided that the Controller of the State should be ex officio member of the board, and the other members to be appointed by the Governor. Section 352 of said code was amended by an act of the Legislature, approved April 1, 1876, and provided that the board should consist of the Governor, Controller, and Attorney General; that the Governor, and in his absence the Controller, should be chairman of the board.

Article XIII, section 9, of the Constitution of 1879, as originally ratified, provided that the board should consist of one member from each congressional district in the State, to be elected by the qualified electors of their respective districts at the general election to be held in 1879, whose term of office, after those first elected, should be four years, and that the Controller of the State should be ex officio a member of the board.

At the time of the adoption and ratification of this constitutional provision the State was divided into four congressional districts, and although this section of the Constitution was amended in 1884, such amendment did not change the apportionment of the State, the number of members of the board, nor their terms of office, but provided that the Legislature shall have power to redistrict the State into four districts as nearly equal in population as practicable, and to provide for the election of the members of said board. Since the adoption of such amendment the Legislature has not passed any law changing the boundaries of the equalization districts.

By an act of the Legislature, approved April 3, 1880, section 352 of the Political Code was amended to conform to the constitutional provision, and provides that they shall elect one of their members as chairman, to hold such office during their pleasure.

By an act of the Legislature, approved March 19, 1907, adding a new section to the Political Code, numbered 125, the counties comprising the several equalization districts are designated, but the boundaries thereof are not altered, and they remain as originally provided for in the Constitution, that is to say, the State Equalization Districts are composed of the counties which were contained within the four Congressional Districts as they existed in 1879. (See map of Equalization Districts of California.)

SALARY.—Section 3700 of the Political Code provided that the salary of each of the members (except the Controller) should be $3,000, until March 15, 1909, when the salary was increased to $4,000 per annum.

Railroad Commissioners.

Section 22, of article XII, of the present Constitution, provides that the State shall be divided into three districts, as nearly equal in population as practicable, in each of which one Railroad Commissioner shall be elected by the qualified electors thereof at the regular gubernatorial elections, and whose terms of office shall be four years, commencing on the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding their election, who shall be qualified electors of the district from which they are elected, and not interested in any railroad or other transportation corporation or company.

Section 23, of article XII, of the Constitution designates the counties comprising the several railroad districts, until the Legislature shall district the State, and until the act approved April 19, 1907, adding section 130 to the Political Code, the Legislature passed no law dividing the State into railroad districts. The provisions of section 130, of said Code, simply conform to section 23, of article XII, of the Constitution, making no change in the formation of the districts.

Section 22, of article XII, of the Constitution as amended at the session of 1911 and approved by the electors at the special election of October 10, 1911, provides that the Railroad Commission consist of five members, appointed by the Governor. The three Commissioners holding office October 10, 1911, to serve out their terms expiring December 31, 1914; and two additional Commissioners appointed by Governor to serve during the same term. Upon expiration of said term each Commissioner to serve six years, except the Commissioners first appointed after expiration of term December 31, 1914, one of whom shall be appointed to serve until January 1, 1917; two to serve until January 1, 1919; and two to serve until January 1, 1921.

SALARY.—The annual salary of each Commissioner is $8,000. The office of the Commission is in the City and County of San Francisco. The office is open, legal holidays and non-judicial days excepted. Sessions shall be held at least once in each calendar month in San Francisco, and may also meet at such other times and in such other places as may be expedient and necessary for the proper performance of its duties.

State Librarian.

ELECTION AND TERM.—January 19, 1850, the Senate adopted a resolution of thanks to John C. Fremont for the presentation by him to the State of one hundred volumes. These books consisted of works on law, medicine, travel, and exploration, and governmental reports. They formed the nucleus of the State Library. On April 9, 1850, an act was passed providing that all books then in the possession of the State or that might thereafter come into its possession should be kept in the office of the Secretary of State, and that that officer should be ex officio State Librarian. March 8, 1861, an act was passed providing that the State Library should be under the control of five trustees, the Governor and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to be ex officio members, and the others to be John R. McConnell, Joseph W. Winans, and Solomon Heydenfeldt. They were to hold office for four years, and their successors were to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention, but the Governor was to fill vacancies when the Legislature was not in session. The board was empowered to elect a State Librarian, to hold office for four years. On March 21, 1864, this act was amended to give the management and control of the Library to five trustees, the Governor and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to be ex officio members, and the others to be Dr. John F. Morse, Joseph W. Winans, and Dr. Harvey W. Harkness. They were to hold office for four years, and their successors were to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention. February 28, 1866, an act was passed giving the direction and control of the Library to five trustees, the Attorney General to be an ex officio member, and the others to be Joseph W. Winans, Dr. Harvey W. Harkness, C. G. W. French, and William C. Belcher. They were to hold office for four years, and their successors were to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention. The original Political Code provided that the Library should be under the control and direction of five trustees, to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention and for a term of four years. The board was empowered to elect a Librarian for a term of four years. February 25, 1890, an act was passed creating a board of five library trustees, to be appointed by the Governor for a term of four years. Three members were to be appointed for a full term after February 28, 1902, and two for a term of two years from that date. Thereafter the successors are to be appointed for the full term. The board is empowered to elect a Librarian for the term of four years.

SALARY.—The act of March 8, 1861, fixed the salary of the State Librarian at $2,500; from the adoption of the Codes the salary was $3,000, until March 19, 1909, when the Legislature increased it to $3,600 per annum.

¹George W. Whitman, American, elected September 5, 1855; took office January 7, 1856. On February 13, 1857, a resolution was passed by the Assembly impeaching Whitman for misdemeanor in office, and on the 24th, articles of impeachment were reported by a committee; the Senate, on March 9th, convened as a high court of impeachment, and on April 21st Whitman was acquitted. Governor Johnson had, on February 25th, appointed Edward F. Burton, American, controller, and he formed the State Senate, and on April 21st Burton was appointed United States Surveyor General for California a few days before the election. On January 21, 1858, Governor Weller nominated Samuel H. Brooks, Democrat, for the office, but the Senate refused to confirm, and on the 27th the Governor withdrew the nomination, explaining that it "had been made under a misapprehension of some material facts." On February 4th, the Governor nominated Aaron R. Meloney for the office, and the Senate confirmed. Afterward, on April 26, because some doubts had been expressed in regard to the regularity of the appointment, the Governor again nominated Meloney, and he was again confirmed. Whitman refused to surrender the office, claiming that he was entitled to hold until his successor should be elected and should qualify, and that as Mandeville had been elected, the Governor had no right to appoint. The matter was taken to the Supreme Court, and a final decision was rendered in Meloney's favor at the July term, 1858. He took office by virtue of this appointment and decision on October 12, 1858.

²Samuel H. Brooks, Leocompton Democrat, elected September 7, 1859. Meloney refused to surrender the office, claiming that he had been elected to serve for two years from his election. The Supreme Court decided in favor of Brooks at the January term, 1860, and he took office under that decision. Brooks resigned November 20, 1861.

³William B. C. Brown, Democrat, appointed by Governor Irwin February 7, 1876, and took office that day. At the next general election, on November 7, 1876, D. M. Kenfield and Brown were voted for to fill the vacancy, and Kenfield received a majority of about 3,000. Governor Irwin declined to issue a commission to him upon the ground that no proclamation had been issued calling for the election of a Controller. Kenfield applied for a writ of mandate to compel the issuance of the commission, but his petition was dismissed by the Supreme Court at the April term, 1877. Brown died at Sacramento, April 12, 1882.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

The original Constitution of California, adopted in 1849, provided for a Supreme Court, to consist of a Chief Justice and two Associate Justices. It further provided, in section 3, of article VI: "The Justices of the Supreme Court shall be elected at the general election by the qualified electors of the State, and shall hold their offices for a term of six years from the first day of January next after the election; provided, that the Legislature shall, at its first meeting, elect a Chief Justice and two Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, by joint vote of both houses, and so classify them that one shall go out of office every two years. After the first election the senior Justice in commission shall be the Chief Justice."

The first Legislature, on February 14, 1850, passed an act to organize the court. It was provided that one Justice should be elected in 1851, one every second year thereafter, and that the Governor should fill vacancies by commission, which should expire at the subsequent general election, when the vacancy should be filled by an election for the remainder of the unexpired term. On the 28th an act was passed authorizing the Clerk of the Supreme Court to rent a suitable room in San Francisco for the March term, 1850, provided that the rent of such room should not exceed $1,000 per month. On March 5th the Legislature fixed the salary of each Justice at $10,000 per annum. On April 13th an act was passed providing for certain special terms in San Francisco, and that afterward the sessions of the court should be held at the seat of government.

In accordance with the provisions of the Constitution above quoted, the first Legislature, on December 22, 1849, elected S. Clinton Hastings Chief Justice, Henry A. Lyons first Associate Justice, and Nathaniel Bennett second Associate Justice. On February 1, 1850, the Legislature passed a resolution classifying the Justices so that Hastings should go out of office at the end of two years from January 1, 1850, Lyons at the end of four years, and Bennett at the end of six years from that date. On March 11, 1851, a law was passed to have one Justice elected in 1852, and one at the general election every second year thereafter; but on April 28th another act was passed providing for the election of one in 1851, and one every second year thereafter. This Legislature also passed a law providing that the terms of court, until January 1, 1852, should be held in San Francisco, and after that at the seat of government. On May 24th an act was passed providing that thereafter the sessions of the court should be held at the capital of the State. The salaries of the Justices were reduced to $6,000 each on April 21, 1856.

Justice Hastings served out his term, and at the general election held September 3, 1851, Solomon Heydenfeldt, Democrat, was elected to succeed him. Heydenfeldt took office January 1, 1852, and resigned January 6, 1857. Governor Johnson, on the 13th, appointed Peter H. Burnett to fill the vacancy, and he resigned October 12, 1857. On the 13th, Governor Johnson appointed Stephen J. Field, Democrat, to serve out the unexpired term. Field had been elected on September 2, 1857, for the full term. This term began on January 1, 1858. In 1863, President Lincoln appointed Field one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, and on May 20th of that year he resigned his seat on the California bench. The next day Governor Stanford appointed Edwin B. Crocker, Republican, to fill the vacancy, and he served until the taking effect of the constitutional amendments of 1862.

Justice Lyons resigned March 31, 1852, and on April 2d Governor Bigler appointed Alexander Anderson to fill the vacancy, and he qualified on the 6th. At the general election on November 2, 1852, Alexander Wells, Democrat, was elected for this short term, and he took his seat on the bench January 3, 1853. Wells was re-elected for the full term, September 7, 1853, and he assumed office by virtue of that election January 4, 1854. He died October 31, 1854, and on November 24th Governor Bigler appointed Charles H. Bryant, Democrat, to fill the vacancy. At the general election held September 5, 1855, David S. Terry, American, was elected by the people, and he assumed office November 15th. Terry resigned September 12, 1859. On the 20th Governor Weller appointed W. W. Cope, Lecompton Democrat, to fill the vacancy. Cope had been elected for the full term at the election held on September 7, 1859, and he took office under the election on January 2d following, and served until the remodeling of the court in 1864.

Justice Bennett resigned October 3, 1851, and on the 11th Governor McDougal appointed Hugh C. Murray, Democrat, to fill the vacancy. On November 2, 1852, Murray was elected to succeed himself, and he took office by virtue of that election on January 3d following. Murray was elected for the full term on September 5, 1855, but died September 18, 1857, and Governor Johnson appointed Peter H. Burnett on October 14th to succeed him. At the election on September 1, 1858, Joseph G. Baldwin, Lecompton Democrat, was elected to fill the remainder of the vacancy, and he assumed office on October 2, 1858. On September 4, 1861, Edward Norton, Republican, was elected for the full term, and took office on January 6th following. He served until the change was effected by the adoption of the constitutional amendments of 1862.

In 1862 the State Constitution was amended to constitute the Supreme Court of a Chief Justice and four Associate Justices, and it provided that the Justices should be elected at special elections, to be provided for by law, at which elections only judicial and school officers should be elected. It was provided further: "The first election for Justices of the Supreme Court shall be held in the year 1863. The Justices shall hold their offices for the term of ten years from the first day of January next after their election, except those elected at the first election, who, at their first meeting, shall so classify themselves, by lot, that one Justice shall go out of office every two years. The Justice having the shortest term to serve shall be Chief Justice."

On March 21, 1863, the Legislature passed an act providing that there should be held on the third Wednesday in October, 1863, and every two years thereafter, an election, to be called the "Special Judicial Election," at which should be elected the Supreme Justices and other judicial and school officers. On April 20th an act was passed to provide for the organization of the new court, and it was enacted that when a vacancy should occur the Governor should fill it by the appointment of a person who should hold office until the next judicial election, and the Justice elected by the people at such election should hold office for the balance of the unexpired term. It was also provided that the terms of the court should be held at the seat of government. The salaries of the Justices were fixed at $6,000 each.

Under this constitutional provision, on October 21, 1863, Oscar L. Shafter, Lorenzo Sawyer, Silas W. Sanderson, John Currey, and A. L. Rhodes—all

Union were elected Supreme Court Justices. The new court organized January 2, 1864, and in accordance with law the Justices drew lots to determine the tenure of their official terms, with the following result: Shafter drew for ten years, Rhodes for eight, Sawyer for six, Currey for four, and Sanderson for two.

Sanderson was elected to succeed himself October 18, 1865, and resigned January 4, 1870. On the 8th, Governor Haight appointed Jackson Temple, Democrat, to fill the vacancy, and he assumed office on the 10th. October 18, 1871, Addison C. Niles, Republican, was elected. He took office January 1st following, and remained on the bench until the new Constitution took effect.

Royal T. Sprague, Democrat, was elected to succeed Currey October 16, 1867; took office January 6, 1868. He died February 24, 1872. On the 4th of March Governor Booth appointed Isaac S. Belcher to fill the vacancy. October 15, 1873, Elisha W. McKinstry, Independent, was elected and took office January 12, 1874, and served until the re-organization of the court under the new Constitution.

October 20, 1869, William T. Wallace, Democrat, was elected to succeed Sawyer. He assumed office January 10, 1870, and served until the new Constitution effected a change in the court.

October 18, 1871, Rhodes was elected to succeed himself, and served until the new court came in.

Shafter resigned December 11, 1867, and Governor Haight appointed Joseph B. Crockett, Democrat, to succeed him. On October 20, 1869, Crockett was elected to succeed himself, and served until the change was effected by the new Constitution.

In 1879 the people adopted the new Constitution, which constituted the Supreme Court of a Chief Justice and six Associate Justices, and it provided: "The Chief Justice and the Associate Justices shall be elected by the qualified electors of the State at large, at the general State elections, at the time and places at which State officers are elected, and the term of office shall be twelve years from and after the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding their election; provided, that the six Associate Justices elected at the first election shall, at their first meeting, so classify themselves, by lot, that two of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, two of them at the end of eight years, and two of them at the end of twelve years, and an entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of the court in bank, signed by them, and a duplicate thereof shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. If a vacancy occur in the office of a Justice, the Governor shall appoint a person to hold the office until the election and qualification of a Justice to fill the vacancy, which election shall take place at the next succeeding general election, and the Justice so elected shall hold the office for the remainder of the unexpired term. The first election of the Justices shall be at the first general election after the adoption and ratification of this Constitution." The salary was fixed at $6,000 per annum.

DISTRICT COURTS OF APPEAL.

At the twenty-fifth session of the Legislature, on March 14, 1903, an amendment was proposed to certain sections of article VI of the Constitution, relating to the Judicial Department of the State, the purpose of which was to submit to a vote of the people a plan to create three District Courts of Appeal and to define the jurisdiction thereof. Section 25, a new section, was proposed, providing for abolishing the Supreme Court Commission at the expiration of its current term of office. It was also proposed to amend section 4 so that upon the ratification of the amendment, the Governor should appoint nine persons as Justices of the Appellate Courts to serve until the first Monday after the first day of January, in the year 1907, and that at the election in 1906, nine such Justices should be elected to take their seats in January, 1907, and the Justices of each District Court should so classify themselves, by lot, that one of them should go out of office at the end of four years, one at the end of eight years, and one at the end of twelve years. These amendments were adopted at the general election on the 8th day of November, 1904. It was also provided that the salaries of the Appellate Judges should be the same as that of the Supreme Court Justices, or $6,000 per annum, which was the figure at that time.

By constitutional amendment, adopted at the general election of 1906, amending section 17 of article VI, the annual salary of the Justices of the Supreme Court was increased from $6,000 to $8,000 per annum and that of the Justices of the District Courts of Appeal was fixed at $7,000.

On the 10th day of April, 1905, the Governor made appointments as follows:

For the First District, Ralph C. Harrison, Presiding Justice; James A. Cooper and Samuel P. Hall, Associate Justices.

For the Second District, Wheaton A. Gray, Presiding Justice; George H. Smith and Matthew T. Allen, Associate Justices.

For the Third District, Norton P. Chipman, Presiding Justice; Abraham J. Buckles and Charles E. McLaughlin, Associate Justices.

At the general election held on the 6th day of November, 1906, the following Justices were elected for the said courts, viz:

For the First District, James A. Cooper, Presiding Justice; Samuel P. Hall (died) and Frank H. Kerrigan, Associate Justices.

For the Second District, Matthew T. Allen, Presiding Justice; James W. Taggart and Victor E. Shaw, Associate Justices. James W. Taggart died and on July 26, 1910, Governor Gillett appointed William P. James as his successor to serve until the next general election. On November 4, 1910, William P. James was elected to serve the unexpired term of James W. Taggart.

For the Third District, Norton P. Chipman, Presiding Justice; E. C. Hart and Albert G. Burnett, Associate Justices.

The classification by lot resulted as follows: Justices Hall, Taggart, and Chipman drew the twelve-year term; Justices Kerrigan, Allen and Hart drew the eight-year term, and Justices Cooper, Shaw, and Burnett drew the four-year term.

At the general election held on the 4th day of November, 1910, the following Justices were elected for the said courts:

The basis for the apportionment of congressional representation depends upon the population of the several states. Congress determines by act the number of members of the House. The act of Congress, approved January 16, 1901, provides that the House of Representatives shall be composed of 386 members, but Oklahoma having been admitted subsequent to this act, the enabling act of Congress, approved June 16, 1906, gives it 5 Representatives, bringing the total up to 391.

Following list shows the increase in number of congressmen given by the thirteenth census: Alabama, 1; California, 3; Colorado, 1; Florida, 1; Georgia, 1; Idaho, 1; Illinois, 2; Louisiana, 1; Massachusetts, 2; Michigan, 1; Minnesota, 1; Montana, 1; New Jersey, 2; New York, 6; North Dakota, 1; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 3; Oregon, 1; Pennsylvania, 4; Rhode Island, 1; South Dakota, 1; Texas, 2; Utah, 1; Washington, 2; West Virginia, 1; total, 42. These, with one each from Arizona and New Mexico, admitted in 1912, make 44 new members in the congress of 1913.

The United States census was first taken in 1790 and subsequently every decennial year.

POPULAR ELECTION OF U. S. SENATORS.

At the second session of the Sixty-second Congress a constitutional amendment, providing for the direct election of United States Senators, was submitted to the Legislatures of the states. The resolution of submission, which became effective on May 16, 1912, read as follows:

"The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof for six years, and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislatures.

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies; provided, that the Legislature of any State may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the Legislature may direct.

"This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution."

The House of Representatives, on April 13, 1911, approved a constitutional amendment providing for the direct election of Senators, but vesting entire control of such elections in the States; the vote standing 297 to 15, after an amendment continuing the federal power of supervision had been defeated by 190 yeas to 122 nays. The Senate, on June 12, 1911, passed the House resolution by a vote of 64 to 24, after amending it by a vote of 45 to 44, so as to restore the status quo as to federal supervision. Conferrees, on the part of the two houses, were unable to reach an agreement, and on May 16, 1912, the House of Representatives yielded to the Senate by a vote of 237 to 39.

On May 31, 1913, the Secretary of State announced that the following thirty-six of the then forty-eight States, had ratified the amendment: Massachusetts, May 22, 1912; Arizona, June 3, 1912; Minnesota, June 10, 1912; New York, January 15, 1913; Kansas, January 17, 1913; Oregon, January 23, 1913; North Carolina, January 25, 1913; California, January 28, 1913; Michigan, January 28, 1913; Idaho, January 31, 1913; West Virginia, February 4, 1913; Nebraska, February 5, 1913; Iowa, February 6, 1913; Montana, February 7, 1913; Texas, February 7, 1913; Washington, February 7, 1913; Wyoming, February 11, 1913; Colorado, February 13, 1913; Illinois, February 13, 1913; North Dakota, February 18, 1913; Nevada, February 19, 1913; Vermont, February 19, 1913; Maine, February 20, 1913; New Hampshire, February 21, 1913; Oklahoma, February 24, 1913; Ohio, February 25, 1913; South Dakota, February 27, 1913; Indiana, March 6, 1913; Missouri, March 7, 1913; New Mexico, March 15, 1913; New Jersey, March 18, 1913; Tennessee, April 1, 1913; Arkansas, April 14, 1913; Connecticut, April 15, 1913; Pennsylvania, April 15, 1913; Wisconsin, May 9, 1913.

STATE LIBRARY.

BY J. L. GILLIS.

The State Library was established January 24, 1850. During the first years no funds were voted for its support, but the third session of the Legislature passed a law requiring each officer commissioned by the Governor to pay $5 to the Secretary of State for library purposes. In 1853 all fees collected by the Secretary of State began to be paid into the State Library fund, and this method of providing maintenance continued until 1901. In that year a fixed sum of $2,500 a month was given the library and this fund was increased at times until it amounted to $5,000 a month. In 1911 by mistake this was unfortunately cut to $3,500, but this error was corrected in 1913, and since that time the annual income of the library has amounted to $95,000.

The Secretary of State was named by law as the first librarian. The first library board was also ex officio and was created in 1852. A change in naming the board was made by the Legislature in 1861, when it passed a law that three of the five members should be elected on its joint ballot. In 1899 still another change was made whereby the entire board was appointed by the Governor, and this is the procedure at present. The librarian is appointed by the board to serve for four years.

The State Library consisted at first of only the hundred volumes given by John C. Fremont. When funds were available for buying books the law department was built up before any particular attention was given to the general department.

Since those first years, however, books in all departments of literature have been added, until at present the library consists of about 175,000 volumes. This number includes, besides the general collection, the following special collections: A very complete and valuable law collection; federal, State, municipal and foreign government documents; books for the blind; and Californiana, consisting of files of bound newspapers and periodicals, manuscripts, pictures, personal record cards filled out by California pioneers, artists, authors, musicians and actors, as well as books covering the history and resources of the State. The material used for legislative reference work is not kept as a special collection, all sections of the library, as well as all members of the staff, being called into use by the legislative reference librarian, especially during the legislative session.

In 1913 the Sutro heirs gave to the State Library the valuable collection gathered together by Adolph Sutro. These books are now located on the third floor of the Lane Medical Library building, San Francisco. The books and other material are being unpacked and listed as fast as possible, and the collection will be opened to the public as a branch of the State Library as soon as it can be made ready.

The State Library aims to supplement the other libraries of the State. It does not attempt to buy fiction or any material of merely passing interest. Its object is rather to build up a collection valuable for research and study and to lend its books to all readers who can not find in their local libraries the material which they need. In counties where county free libraries have been established this lending is done through the library. Where there is no county free library, books are loaned through the town public library. In cases where no libraries exist, individuals can borrow by having an application signed by a State officer, or by depositing five dollars. Up to January 1, 1915, there were twenty-six counties which had established county free libraries: Alameda, Butte, Contra Costa, Fresno, Glenn, Humboldt, Imperial, Inyo, Kern, Kings, Los Angeles, Madera, Merced, Monterey, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, Solano, Stanislaus, Tulare and Yolo. Loans made through a county free library to that part of the county supporting it are sent free of transportation charges.

On September 4, 1913, the California State Library School was established. The first class began work January 14, 1914, and fourteen members finished the course December 18th. The second class, consisting of fourteen students, began its course September 23, 1914, and will end its work June 25, 1915. The lecturers in the different subjects are the heads of departments of the State Library who also conduct the practice work. It is hoped that the school will help meet the demand for California librarians.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENT COMMISSION.

On September 1, 1911, California's first compensation law came into existence. It was generally referred to as the Roseberry Law, and was divided into two parts: (1) liability, (2) compensation. Employers were given an option of operating either under one system or the other. Experience for the two years and four months under this law paved the way for the passage of the Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act, which became effective on January 1, 1914. All employees in the State of California, except those engaged in agricultural and kindred pursuits, and in household domestic service, come under this law. At first there was opposition and misunderstanding concerning the new law, but before many months passed there was noted a marked change in public sentiment, and employers who had expressed their opposition to the new method of treating injured workers and the dependents of those killed in industry became the staunchest supporters of the act.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PASSED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE.

A pronounced public sentiment in favor of abolishing the liability system was shown by the voters of California on October 10, 1911, when a constitutional amendment was adopted by a majority of 82,312 enabling the Legislature to pass compulsory compensation legislation.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS HAPPENING IN CALIFORNIA.

During the year 1914 there occurred in the State of California 59,787 industrial accidents of sufficient severity to require medical or surgical treatment, or else to involve the loss of one day of industrial time. Of this total number of accidents, 11,086, or 34 per cent, occasioned disability lasting two weeks or longer. There were 560 persons killed. All of the rest received no compensation other than such medical and surgical treatment as may have been furnished them.

ADJUSTMENT OF CONTROVERSIES.

Of the 11,086 employees who were entitled to disability indemnity payments by reason of their injuries, there were exactly 800 instances in which controversies arose that had to be formally settled by the Industrial Accident Commission. There were thousands of other instances in which the advice and assistance of the officers of the Commission was required to effect adjustments of claims without formal hearings of disputes. In addition to these 800 cases, all of which were under the Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act, 50 cases arose during the year 1914 under the Roseberry Act, making a total of 850 cases arising during the year 1914. Of this total number, 607 cases had been decided by the Commission by the end of the year 1914 as follows: for employees, 398; for employers, 154; dismissed, 55.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

The principle of charging the industry for the human cost, as well as the other costs of production, while new in California, has been well established in other countries. Ever since 1884 Germany has had a compensation law, and other countries of Europe, including Russia, years ago made provision for the dependents of those who contributed their lives to carry on industry, as well as to those who suffered injuries while at work. Half of the states in the Union now have compensation laws, and the Federal Government is contemplating the adoption of a law that will abolish liability altogether and furnish compensation, if needs be, for each Federal employee.

The National Council for Industrial Safety estimates the number of killed and injured in the industries of the United States each year at 2,035,000, out of which number the killed are estimated at more than 34,000. Just think what this means! Every hour 232 workmen killed or injured; every 15 minutes a workman killed; every 16 seconds a workman injured. These stupendous figures are corroborated by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, perhaps the leading statistician of the country, and W. J. Ghent, also an authority, believes they are conservative indeed.

COMPENSATION INSURANCE.

When the present law came into operation, provision was made for employers to carry insurance with the State Compensation Insurance Fund, with any of the private companies, by means of mutual or inter-insurance companies, or the employers could carry their own insurance, that is, not insure at all.

During the year 1914, the State Compensation Insurance Fund, with C. W. Fellows as manager, wrote net premiums to the amount of $547,161.24, more than $144,000 ahead of its nearest competitor. The expenses of operation of the State Compensation Insurance Fund have been less than 12 per cent of the premiums received. All the cost of administration has been paid by the income of the fund and the State of California has not been called upon to pay one cent for the maintenance of this department.

As a result of the successful administration, the State Compensation Insurance Fund has returned to policy holders a refund of 15 per cent on premiums earned in 1914, and has an unapportioned surplus of approximately 20 per cent to be later returned to these same policy holders.

SAFETY DEPARTMENT.

Students of workmen's compensation agree that it is far better to prevent accidents than to compensate those that happen. This view is universally conceded to be correct; in fact, public sympathy has been aroused in favor of an accident-prevention campaign in the United States as a result of the passage of the various compensation laws. The industrial record in this land shows such a heavy toll of killed and injured that it was high time steps were taken to remove the charge of heartlessness against the industries. Just as soon as compensation became effective employers realized that the agitation to prevent accidents had also a financial value. Inasmuch as practically all accidents, under compensation, have to be provided for, the fewer the accidents the less the hazard, and insurance rates are decreased when the hazard is reduced.

In California the Industrial Accident Commission has the advantage of working with the Federal Government in providing safe conditions of employment in the mining industry. Half the salary and half the expenses of the mining engineer, H. M. Wolfen, are paid by the State, the other half being met by the United States Bureau of Mines. This plan has prevented duplication of work and has secured the highest service.

A small but efficient corps of safety engineers, headed by Superintendent of Safety John R. Brownell, did excellent work in 1914 in instructing employers how to use home-made safeguards to prevent accidents. At a minimum of cost a maximum of result has been attained. Many hundreds of industrial plants have been safeguarded at the request of employers, and the "Safety First" movement in California has proceeded by leaps and bounds because of the co-operative methods organized by the safety department in conjunction with employers and employees. A safety museum has been installed at 525 Market street, and a similar museum in the Hollingsworth Building, Los Angeles. Employers have testified that the suggestions offered by the safety engineers have also resulted in increased output. This comes because of the elimination of danger and the consequent ability of the employee to proceed with his work without having to anticipate the possibility of injury.

Under the law, safety orders, rules and regulations can be enforced by the Industrial Accident Commission, but the plan adopted is to consult freely with committees of employers and employees so that these orders, rules or regulations will be carefully prepared and have the full approval of those directly interested.

APPOINTMENTS.

On September 1, 1911, Governor Hiram W. Johnson appointed A. J. Pillsbury (who was elected chairman), Will J. French and Willis I. Morrison as members of the Industrial Accident Board. Mr. Morrison's resignation at the end of his term of two years enabled Governor Johnson to appoint Harris Weinstock in his stead. On January 1, 1914, A. J. Pillsbury (again re-elected chairman), was appointed for the four-year term on the Industrial Accident Commission, Will J. French for the three-year term and Harris Weinstock for the two-year term.

THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

By W. D. EGILBERT, Commissioner-General, State of California, to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Opening at San Francisco, California, on February 20, 1915, and scheduled to close on December 4th of the same year, the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is the third exposition of world-wide character held in the United States and the twelfth held anywhere in the world. That it is by far the greatest of all in the entire list is a conclusion arrived at from the comparative consideration of this and all preceding expositions in every detail. It is the official, national and international celebration of a contemporaneous event of world importance—the opening of the Panama Canal—the most stupendous engineering achievement of all ages.

It seemed fitting from the very first that an event so potential should be acknowledged in a big way; that the celebration itself should be commensurate in magnitude and general character with the vast triumph commemorated; that, since all nations are to be affected in their destinies, economic and educational, by the apparent meeting of the oceans, all nations should participate in the exposition held in honor of the accomplishment; that the metropolis of the Pacific Coast should be the place of celebration because of the new and immense importance which the nations of the Pacific geographical division are to assume henceforth in the world of commerce.

While the nation was thinking of the celebration of the supreme physical engineering feat, it remained for R. B. Hale, one of the directors and vice-president of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, in 1904, to suggest a triumphful celebration, which has now reached its fullest fruition.

The first recorded, concerted step taken toward preparing the exposition was in April, 1910, at a mass meeting of the citizens of San Francisco, held in the Merchants' Exchange building when the sum of $4,000,000 was raised within two hours by popular subscription. This, later, was increased to $7,500,000. Following this, the State of California amended its constitution to enable it to levy a tax of $5,000,000, and the citizens of San Francisco voted from the city a bond issue of $5,000,000. These large sums, augmented later by the liberal amounts raised by the fifty-eight counties of the State of California, for the individual representation of the counties, brought the total up to $20,000,000 coming from California alone. Added to this amount are the appropriations made by the many participating states of the Union, the officially participating foreign nations, the concessionaires and the 80,000 or more individual exhibitors. Exclusive of the millions of dollars worth of comprehensive exhibits, the exposition represents in round figures an investment in excess of $50,000,000, while the conservative value of the exhibits represents the immense total of $300,000,000.

On February 15, 1911, William Howard Taft, President of the United States, signed the resolution of both houses of Congress officially designating San Francisco as the site for the celebration.

Actual construction work on the exposition was begun on October 14, 1911, when President Taft turned the first spadeful of earth at Harbor View, the site of the celebration. On February 2, 1912, the President issued the official proclamation of the celebration, inviting all the nations of the earth to join therein.

GREATEST OF ALL EXPOSITIONS.

To state that the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is the greatest of all expositions perhaps means but little on first thought. To state that the wonderful show represents $50,000,000 and more, besides the value of the exhibits, perhaps means but little more so far as concrete impressions are concerned. But consider these comparisons: The Chicago World's Fair cost $18,678,000; the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition $6,165,000; San Francisco's Mid-Winter Fair $607,000;

Atlanta Exposition $443,000; Nashville Exposition $528,000; Omaha Exposition $1,104,000; Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis $18,003,000; the Seattle Exposition $2,202,000. These figures represent the cost of the buildings and grounds alone. Consider also that the value of the exhibits at the St. Louis Exposition of ten years ago was estimated at $250,000,000; and that the exhibits of this exposition of the present day far transcend in quantity, scope and monetary outlay any exhibition ever held.

The many respects in which the Panama-Pacific International Exposition differs from its predecessors is another composite item contributing to its unrivaled superiority.

It is the first international exposition to open on schedule time; it is likewise the first to be located at a seaport, and the first on the shore of the Pacific Ocean; the first to celebrate a contemporaneous event of world-wide importance; the first to be situated in the residential district of a city, within easy walking distance of half the population; the first to be finished in color; the first to be built on the court plan; the first to be illuminated by indirect lighting; the first to use nitrogen lamp, high pressure gas, and "novagems"; the first to have a polo field within the grounds; the first to prepare a mile race track; the first to provide an auditorium for conventions and societies; the first in number and size of national and international congresses and conventions; the first to illustrate in its architecture the seven great architectural epochs; the first to achieve perfect unity in its architecture and its coloring; the first to have a grand international naval parade, bearing the President of the United States, former Presidents, cabinet members and foreign dignitaries; the first to have a continuous live stock show; the first to have a dog show of all breeds of all nations; the first to adopt a compact arrangement of its exhibit palaces, enabling visitors to pass from one to another without exposure to the weather; the first in its human welfare activities; the first in the participation of the Pacific countries; the first to confine its exhibits to contemporaneous products and affairs.

SITE UNRIVALED FOR CHARM AND ADVANTAGE.

There never has been an exposition with a setting which combined in such high degree the merits of natural charm, accessibility and practical advantage which grant first place to Harbor View, San Francisco, the site of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The site as a whole consists of 635 acres—a natural amphitheater of which the two and one-half mile front extends along the shores of San Francisco Bay. On each flank are lofty eminences crowned with fortifications of Fort Mason and the Presidio. At the back rise the low, rolling hills of San Francisco, crowned with her most beautiful residences. The view facing the water is undoubtedly one of the most famous in the world, looking out, as it does, across the blue, island-studded waters of the bay and the gigantic background formed by the Marin hills, with Mt. Tamalpais, the sublime pinnacle of all. Under the turquoise blue of California sky, drenched with sunshine and color, it is a scene at once exquisitely beautiful and solemnly majestic.

The proximity of the site to a world waterway is a wonderful advantage. Through the portals of the Golden Gate the nations of the earth have brought their richest offerings to the very gates of the exposition, avoiding a long continental haul and consequent damage from reshipping.

The site also adapts itself to the carrying out of wonderful aquatic displays. Carnivals, maneuvers by the fleets of all nations, international yacht racing, motor boat racing, exhibitions by submarines and hydroplanes, all will be indulged in in the immediate foreground of the exposition palaces.

LANDSCAPE, ARCHITECTURE, SCULPTURE AND COLOR.

Landscape gardening, architecture, sculpture and color are the four wonderful arts which have worked in collaboration in producing the marvelous spectacle of grandeur that adorns the beautiful exposition site, and constitutes the exterior phase of the exposition proper. Arriving at the exposition from any of the several entrances, the visitor is at once impressed by the sublime and carnival grandeur of the whole immense scene before him before noting specifically the larger of its details; the spaciousness and gaiety of the gardens, the abundance and permanent appearance of the forestation, the monumental character and originality of the mammoth architecture and abundant sculpture, and the restfulness and harmonious beauty of the color applied which is Oriental in suggestion but new in effect and wholly free from the garish or barbaric note.

In such close and happy harmony have the four related arts worked that the composite effect gives one the impression of being the work of but one heroic, versatile mind. Every detail in garden, design, architecture, sculpture and color work has been chosen for its relative fitness as well as for its individual attractiveness and desirability.

LANDSCAPE BEAUTY A SUPREME ATTRACTION.

Some idea of the magnitude of the task involved in the landscape gardening alone can be gained when it is considered that two years prior to the opening of the mammoth exposition the whole 635-acre area was but one vast stretch of sand dunes, and that the whole territory required covering with new soil to a depth that would bring into flowering being the magnificent scene that now exists; 635 acres set out artistically in well-kept lawns; beds of blooming flowers whose plants count into the tens of thousands—their blossoms in greater multiples, evergreen trees of great height and vigor; shrubs of numerous species and handsome kinds; gardens transplanted from foreign lands and from climates vastly dissimilar to our own.

ARCHITECTURE EXPRESSES IDEA OF UNIVERSALITY.

The general architectural plan of this exposition is in harmony with the theme of the great international exposition itself. Just as the great celebration of the achievement of the Panama Canal is one of world-wide participation, all nations of the world represented, so too does the architecture partake of that universal flavor. It is a blending of the styles of the new and old worlds. Types of architecture distinctive of the East and of the West are seen in the various exhibit palaces and courts, so that the general architectural scheme expresses the idea of universality.

There are three main groupings to the exposition ground plan. The central group comprises the eleven main palaces of exhibition and Festival Hall. In this group are contained the North and South Gardens, the Court of the Universe, the Court of Abundance, the Court of the Four Seasons, and the Court of Palms and Flowers.

The eastern group is the "Zone," the amusement street of the exposition, running for a distance of 3,000 feet, thickly lined on both sides with one hundred concessions representing the last word in the fun-making line.

The third or western group, extending well into the Presidio reservation, contains the buildings of the State and foreign section, the live stock section and the race track and stadium.

The pivotal point, architecturally, is the spacious Court of the Universe, measuring 450,000 square feet in area, located in the center of the group composed of the eleven palaces.

The main exhibit palaces, eleven in number, contain, under a comprehensive and representative classification, examples of the resources and achievements along all lines of human endeavor, which are divided into departments as follows: "A"—Fine Arts; "B"—Education; "C"—Social Economy; "D"—Liberal Arts; "E"—Manufactures and Varied Industries; "F"—Machinery; "G"—Transportation; "H"—Agriculture; "I"—Agriculture (food products); "K"—Horticulture; "L"—Mines and Metallurgy.

These eleven great palaces, together with Festival Hall, form the central setting of a beautiful picture, flanked on the city side by the "Zone," or amusement section, and on the other end by the buildings of the various States and the pavilions of the foreign nations. These latter join the aviation field, race track and live stock exhibit, terminating in the grounds of a great military reservation, the Presidio, where the competitive drills and army maneuvers will take place.

In formation, the eight main exhibit palaces—Education, Liberal Arts, Manufactures, Varied Industries, Agriculture, Food Products, Transportation and Mines and Metallurgy—represent a quadrangle, being bisected by an avenue east and west and intersected by avenues north and south, the intersections marking the three great courts. The facades of the palaces are the walls of these courts and partake of the particular style of architecture dominating the court on which they front. These eight palaces are flanked on the east by the great Palace of Machinery and on the west by the Palace of Fine Arts.

Passing through the main gate on the city side, the visitor enters the great South Garden, 3,000 feet in length, on the right extremity of which can be seen the beautiful Festival Hall. To the extreme left is the Palace of Horticulture. Immediately in front is the Main Tower, or "Tower of Jewels." This great garden, itself a marvel of landscape engineering skill, is but one side of a magic carpet on which these beautiful palaces are set, the 300-foot wide "Marina" and its grand Esplanade, with its floricultural splendors, forming the other side, the pattern threading its winding way through the various courts and recesses over the entire grounds, forming a correlated whole which, for wondrous beauty, has never been equaled.

Passing from this great garden under the arch of the main tower the visitor enters the "Court of the Universe," the largest of the five courts of the exposition. This is the meeting place of the eastern and western hemispheres, and the decorative scheme on each side is typical of this theme. On the extreme right and left are two great Triumphal Arches, the one on the right, which leads to the Court of Abundance, being surmounted by a magnificent statuary group, "The Nations of the East," the figures symbolizing life in the Orient, while the arch on the left, leading to the Court of Four Seasons, has a group of the same proportions "The Nations of the West," symbolical of life in the Occident. Straight ahead is the colossal column of Progress, surmounted by the "Adventurous Bowman" shooting the arrow towards the west.

To the right, under the "Arch of the Rising Sun," is the avenue leading to the "Court of Abundance," which terminates at its southern extremity into the "Court of Flowers," one of the minor courts; while to the left, under the "Arch of the Setting Sun," is the avenue leading to the beautiful "Court of the Four Seasons," which, at its southern extremity, enters the other minor court, the "Court of Palms."

Continuing straight ahead one comes to the edge of the spacious Yacht Harbor and the center of the Grand Esplanade or "Marina." Long after the exposition is over—when it is only a fond and loving memory—this esplanade will remain to grace and enhance the natural beauties of San Francisco Bay.

EXPOSITION PURPOSE EXPRESSED BY SCULPTURE.

More than 1,500 figures are included in the great sculpture "exhibit" which is used to serve a decorative as well as expository purpose. But with these outward embellishments, however, one theme has been constant,—that of the exposition purpose, to symbolize poetically the meeting of the nations through the waterway of the Panama Canal, the last obstacle between the Occident and the Orient.

The Fountain of Energy, in the South Gardens, facing the main entrance gate, symbolizes the character and force that built the great canal. The heroic groups of sculpture over the two great arches of the Rising and Setting Sun symbolize the meeting of the nations by the Panama waterway. And the Column of Progress, the highest sculptured column in the world, symbolizes the further spiritual and material advancements of the people of the earth which is an inevitable consequence of increased communication and intercourse such as the completion of the canal will make possible.

The interior courts of the main group of palaces are elaborately ornamented with statuary, and each of the great palaces is decorated with sculpture symbolizing the nature of that building. On arches, in columns, in friezes, posing as fountains, in free standing groups, and adorning buildings—sculpture is wonderful in prominence, and the beauty and originality presented by the unique collection is a happy revelation of new and increasing qualities in design.

COLOR SCHEME ESTABLISHES NEW EXPOSITION IDEAL.

This is the first exposition to have a uniform color scheme. From one end to the other, throughout the entire area of the vast and picturesque site—whether it be within the boundaries of the “Zone” or among the buildings and pavilions of the States and Foreign Nations, or in the midst of the great palaces themselves—the same beautiful, soft, entrancing color scheme prevails; revolutionary in expositions. Here all is shown in tints unlike anything ever before attempted.

The buildings proper are of an old ivory, colored after the famous Travertine marble. The tinting is in eight colors: French green for garden lattices; deep cerulean blue for recessed panels and vaulted ceilings; an orange-pink for flag-poles; a pinkish red, with a dash of brown, for the background of colonnades, golden burnt-orange for small domes and mouldings; terra cotta for domes; gold for statuary; and verdi-antique for urns and vases.

In words of Jules Guerin, director of color: “Before submitting my finished plans to my fellow directors I carefully considered the fact that the exposition would be seen from three points—from the sea level, from the ground level and from the level of the surrounding highlands. The first two were easy to cope with, but to meet the third contingency required a little more daring. I resolved that even the roofs should be harmoniously colored, so that when those who throng the avenues on the land side of the exposition look down upon it they will see a great parti-colored area of red tiles, golden domes, and copper-green minarets.”

The exquisite harmony of the color blending of the domes, towers, minarets, and other details makes the exposition at a glance a spectacle of wondrous yet simple splendor—a scene in which beauty is of a rare, charming type—new, exquisite, wonderful.

REMARKABLE MURAL PAINTINGS ADORN BUILDINGS.

In the exterior courts of the main group of exhibit palaces color is seen glorified in its application to the painting of thirty remarkable murals, fifteen by eighty feet, in which only red, yellow and blue have been utilized. Some of the world's most famous artists have contributed to this feature. This is the first time in the history of world's expositions that such paintings have been shown on exterior walls, and it is the first time that, instead of being executed in perishable material, they have been executed on canvas, to be preserved in galleries when the exposition has become but a vivid memory and a huge volume in history.

EXPOSITION'S ILLUMINATION SCHEME IS CAUSE FOR MARVEL.

As with every other detail of the exposition's plans, the illumination of the grounds and buildings was given the most careful study by experts, and shows effects, results and novelties heretofore unknown.

At this exposition the modern method of indirect or concealed lighting has been developed to its highest degree of perfection. The exposition is the best lighted of any spot on earth, yet it is almost literally true that the visitor never sees a light. Buildings and grounds glow apparently by their own luminosity. By a wonderful and entirely new system of lighting a soft, restful, perfect light pervades the courts at night, revealing in amazing clearness the facades and walls of the palaces, and the natural colors of the shrubbery and flowers, giving an effect as bright and soft as daylight. By peculiar and novel lighting devices the statuary and mural paintings are made to appear with even heightened effect.

Many wonderful coloring effects have been prepared. In addition to the lighting of the grounds and buildings themselves, enormous searchlights located on barges anchored in the bay, off the exposition site, throw powerful beams of constantly changing color over the entire grounds.

An item among other novelties and effects, the Tower of Jewels, 435 feet high, is one of the most monumental in character. This is the main tower of the grounds, and its arch is the south entrance to the Court of the Universe. Hung tremulously on this great tower are more than 125,000 specially cut jewels, "novagems," in colors of ruby, amethyst, turquoise, emerald, and in the flashing white of diamonds. Because of their extraordinary refractive powers these jewels scintillate incessantly in hasty response to the play of light both by night and day, contributing to the magnificent spectacle a quality of novelty that approaches the magic.

MAIN BUILDINGS OF THE EXPOSITION.

Of the many palaces of exhibition, none is more beautiful than the Palace of Fine Arts, a wonderful Graeco-Roman structure, fireproof and burglar-proof, covering a space of 950 by 135 feet and built at a cost of $580,000. Here beauty has been carried to the point of nobility, the imposing building suggesting by the very character of its architecture the high purpose it serves in housing the world's masterpieces of present-day art work. The length of this building from north to south describes an arc eleven hundred feet. In the center of the arc is erected a great dome with steps leading down to the lagoon in a beautiful setting of shrubbery, composed of Monterey cypress and other evergreen trees, making one of the prettiest outdoor pictures of the whole exposition.

The Palace of Horticulture, constructed almost entirely of glass, measures 672 feet in length and 320 feet at its point of greatest width. A dominant feature of this mammoth building is its huge glass dome, larger than that of St. Peter's at Rome. An imposing nave, eighty feet in height, runs the length of the building, and, paralleling the central nave, are two side aisles (one on either side) each fifty feet in height. The cost of this structure was $341,000.

The Palace of Machinery is the largest building on the exposition site. It is one of the largest frame structures ever erected, being 967 feet long, 367 feet wide and 136 feet high; built at a cost of $659,665. Four carloads of nails, 1,500 tons of bolts and washers, and one and one-half miles of cornices were used in the construction of this building.

The other eight palaces comprise what is known as the main group of eight. They are in appearance a great walled city, the lofty facades on the four sides being broken at regular intervals by ornate doorways, court entrances and connecting avenues which prevent monotony, and, in a wonderfully worked-out plan, combine the Gothic and classic schools and the Renaissance style of architecture in the strikingly beautiful and appropriate whole.

The Palace of Education and Social Economy, 394 by 526 feet, represents an investment of $304,263. The Palace of Liberal Arts, 475 feet by 585 feet, cost $344,180; the Palace of Manufactures, 475 by 552 feet, $341,069; the Palace of Varied Industries, 414 by 541 feet, $312,691; the Palace of Transportation, 579 by 614 feet, $481,610; the Palace of Agriculture, 579 by 639 feet, $425,610; the Palace of Food Products, 424 by 579 feet, $342,551; the Palace of Mines and Metallurgy, 451 by 579 feet, $359,445.

Festival Hall, at the west end of the South Gardens, is opposite the Palace of Horticulture. It was built at a cost of $270,000 and covers an area of 57,400 square feet. This building is to be the center of the dramatic and musical life of the exposition, and is provided with a magnificent $50,000 pipe organ, a theater with seating capacity for 3,000 people, and numerous meeting rooms.

As an adjunct to the exposition buildings proper is the great auditorium in the civic center of San Francisco. This is a four-story construction of stone and steel, and cost $1,250,000. It is to be a permanent public building, and will subsequently contain the great pipe organ now in Festival Hall.

Combining in equal measure the ideas of landscape, architecture, sculpture and color are the five courts.

The Court of the Universe, 630,000 square feet in area, is the great central court of honor of the exposition, and, in design and decoration, is made to represent the meeting place of the hemispheres. At its northern end is a great pool of water embellished with statuary.

The Court of the Four Seasons is the west central court and one of the most beautiful sections of the exposition. Hadrian's Villa, one of the historic Roman palaces, was its inspiration. It is surrounded by a beautiful colonnade and, in each of the four corners, are niches containing groups of statuary, "Spring," "Summer," "Autumn" and "Winter."

The Court of Abundance, the east central of the group, shows in its design the Oriental phase of the Spanish-Moorish type, and is dedicated to music, dancing, acting and pageantry.

The Court of Palms is one of the two minor courts of the exposition. Its entrance is from the great South Garden between two towers, each rising to a height of 200 feet, favoring the period of the Italian Renaissance. Contained herein are species of rare and beautiful palms.

The Court of Flowers, the second of the minor courts, also has its entrance from the great South Gardens between two Italian towers. As its name denotes, this court is the home of vari-colored flowers.

MULTIFORM EXHIBITS CONFINED TO PRESENT-DAY PROGRESS.

As the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is the celebration of a contemporaneous event of world importance, the exhibits in main are fittingly confined to only such as stand for present-day progress, nothing being admitted to competition for prize awards unless produced or discovered within the past decade, in other words, since the St. Louis exposition of ten years ago.

The system of awards is competitive, merit being determined by group, department and superior (international) juries, and manifested by the issuance of diplomas divided into six classes: a grand prize, a medal of honor, a gold medal, a silver medal, a bronze medal, and an honorable mention (without a medal).

An amazing wonderland of exhibits is contained in the eleven great palaces of exhibition, and in the live stock department, supplemented by a wonderful array of displays made in various of the State and national pavilions. That these exhibits are of inestimable value, impossible of a fair appraisal in terms of money, is a fact made clear even by the bare delineation of their scope in a briefly written classification.

Still exhibits, live exhibits, maps, models, charts, paintings, working exhibits, industrial and other demonstrations, and moving picture reels are among the principal means of exploitation used. The whole vast range of displays is characterized by a marvelous ingenuity in presentation. Thus the method of the display is, in most cases, of as vital interest as the subject matter itself.

EXHIBITS AS THEY ARE CLASSIFIED.

In the Palace of Fine Arts there is a wonderful exhibition confined to only the highest type of paintings, drawings and sculpture produced by every nation of artistic prominence. Only originals are included; copies are barred. The result is a treasury of art gems unparalleled in this country.

The exhibits in the department of education show the development made in the last ten years, and forecast the education of the future. Comparisons of the systems in vogue in all nations represented are drawn. The entire range of educational institutions is covered from the kindergarten to the advanced colleges, and the instructive importance of libraries and museums is pointed out. The work of educating in specialized lines is indicated, showing also the relation between education and the general industrial advance of the past decade.

Allied to the educational exhibit is that made by the department of social economy. Public affairs, society, and the various influences operating for the promotion or the checking of human welfare and progress are covered.

In the Palace of Liberal Arts the displays cover a wide range of activities. Printing, photography, and practically everything contributory to the development and maintenance of publishing activities are treated extensively. Other general fields covered by the exhibits of this department are instruments of precision, philosophic apparatus, coins and medals, medicine and surgery, chemical and pharmalcal arts, musical instrument^y, theatrical appliances and equipment, electrical methods of communication, civil and military engineering, models, plans and designs for public works, architecture, and architectural engineering. As in the case of most every other exhibitivie department, where possible processes as well as products are shown.

In the two great palaces devoted to the exhibits of manufactures and varied industries, the effect throughout has been to select for exhibition only such products of the inventive trades as mark a decisive and original step forward. The specific lines represented are many and different in kind, including not only the goods one would find in the principal shops of a large city, but also everything that goes into the interior finish and decoration of public and private dwellings. In the Palace of Manufactures proper, where the idea of utility predominates, there are two great divisions: one includes heating, hardware, glass, lighting, and merchandise in woods and metals; the other, clothing, textiles, and allied commodities. In the Palace of Varied Industries, where ornamentation of the beautiful controls, are installed the articles which add to use, such as the contents of the "House Beautiful."

In the mammoth Palace of Machinery there is a costly collection of exhibits of machinery used in the generation, transmission and application of power. Comprised in the several groups are examples of steam generators and accessory appliances, internal combustion motors, hydraulic motors, miscellaneous motors, general machinery and accessories, tools for shaping woods and metals, and ten separate groups in the electrical line. The latter includes commutating apparatus, synchronous apparatus, stationary induction apparatus, rotary induction apparatus, unipolar (acyclic) apparatus, rectifying apparatus, luminous apparatus, measuring, indicating and recording apparatus, apparatus for protection of electric apparatus, and for control and distribution of electric energy other than railway material, and electro-chemical apparatus. Wherever possible the machinery is displayed in operation.

The latest triumphs in transportation methods and facilities compose the theme of exhaustive exhibits in the Palace of Transportation. Travel by land, by water and in the air are illustrated. Specifically the several groups cover the progress made the past decade in carriages and wheelwrights' work, automobiles and cycles, saddlery and harness, railways, material and equipment used in the mercantile marine, material and equipment of naval services; naval and military ordnance, dirigibles, spherical balloons, military ballooning, aeroplanes, gases, motors and literature on various topics relating to transportation. Supplementary to the aerial exhibition quarters in the Palace of Transportation is the aviation field where the rapid development in the art and science of invading the air will be demonstrated.

The agricultural exhibit is wide in scope. It shows not only the principal agricultural products of each exhibiting country, but also the means employed in the cultivation of the land, the sowing, irrigating, care and harvesting of the crops, and an exhaustive display of farm machinery is made in connection. In this department also is shown all that pertains to forestry and forest products. And it is here that the United States Department of Agriculture has the displays of its Weather Bureau, its Office of Public Roads, Office of Experimental Stations, and the Bureaus of Biological Survey, Forestry, Animal Industry and Plant Industry.

Under this same department, but in a separate palace, the exhibit of food products are grouped, including both vegetable and animal food products and the equipment and methods employed in the preparation of both solid foods and beverages.

The exhibits in the live stock department comprise fine specimens of horses and mules, cattle, sheep, goats and unclassified domestic animals, swine, dogs, cats and other pet stock, poultry and birds. Not only the animals are shown, but also the most efficient methods of raising, breeding, feeding, fattening and housing are demonstrated.

View of the Court of Abundance, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, showing the wealth of rich carving used in its ornamentation.

Wonderful gardens transplanted from foreign countries and from climates vastly dissimilar to our own; new creations and heretofore unexhibited varieties of plant life; industrial demonstrations of the care, preparation and handling of horticultural products; all these are features of the wonderful exhibition in the Palace of Horticulture. Listed by groups, the displays made in that department include appliances and methods of pomology, floriculture and arboriculture; appliances and methods of viticulture; pomology; preserved, dried and pickled fruits; fruit culture; trees, shrubs, ornamental plants and flowers; seeds, bulbs, cuttings and plants for propagation; theory of horticulture and horticultural statistics. A colossal glass palace and a spacious outdoor garden are devoted to the horticultural displays.

The exhibits housed in the Palace of Mines and Metallurgy deal with the natural mineral resources of the world, their exploration and exploitation, their conversion into metal, their manufacture into structural forms and into raw material for the various industries. In connection with these displays are interesting and instructive exhibits of mining machinery and processes in operation, and a popular feature is a model mine, built realistically underground, with stopes and lifts, to be visited by the thousands of sightseers desirous of learning "first hand" what a visit to a real mine means.

From beginning to end, the exhibits made in all departments have been arranged so as to interest and instruct not only the followers of the special lines illustrated, but also to appeal to the layman—whatever his bent or nationality.

A FEW AMONG THOUSANDS OF NOTEWORTHY EXHIBITS.

It is impossible in any amount of printed space to give a fair idea of what wonderful sights the exposition exhibits contain. It is equally impossible to cite even average or typical exhibits, so vast is the range, and so wide the dissimilarities which they present. However, listed herewith is a brief mention of the specific character of a few among thousands of noteworthy exhibits.

The most gigantic exhibit of all is that of the products of the greatest steel corporation in America, whose total "properties" presented in the display aggregate 1,500 tons in weight. The most minute exhibit in the whole infinite list consists of a derivative of radium, being but 1/160 of a troy ounce, yet valued at $300,000. Both these remarkable exhibits are in the Palace of Mines and Metallurgy. Their vast unlikeness to each other suggests by contrast the wonderful breadth of variety which the multiform and many thousand exhibits between them present.

Great interest will center on the educational display made by China. It is the first school exhibit ever made by newer China after the reorganization of her school system along American lines. Among the 6,079 separate features of this exhibit are 100 tons of carved woodwork and hand-made wares—all objects of art and utility made by the pupils of schools and vocational institutions in the different provinces in China—including wooden reproductions of every important pagoda in that Asiatic country.

In the 10,000-foot area allotted to the exposition of textiles in the Palace of Varied Industries is a remarkable succession of exhibits relating to the silk industry, showing actual silk worms spinning the raw silk, and every succeeding process intervening, leading to the final display of the finished silk gown when worn by lovely women.

Dress, apart from its manufacture and distribution, is also represented by two fashion shows: one historical, showing the clothing worn by women from earliest times to the present day; the other of a character revealing the originality of America and its fitness to become the creator of fashions.

Interesting animals come in for their ample share of representation, both in the great live stock show and elsewhere. In the Canadian Building busy beavers are exhibited building their domiciles of mud. Kangaroos are among the characteristic species included in the Australian Zoo. Brilliantly colored fish from Hawaii are displayed swimming in sea water imported from Waikiki. The game and song birds native of Oregon are housed in a large aviary supplementing the Oregon State Building. An ostrich farm is a "Zone" attraction. A wonderful display of fancy Japanese fish in an aquarium is an embellishment for the Japanese horticultural display. The commercial fish of this country are shown in all stages of development, beginning with the egg period, in the Palace of Food Products. The Persian Government has sent a flock of fat-tailed sheep and also of Caracal sheep, whose wool is the raw material for astrakhan. Japan has sent valuable specimens of sacred Yokohama or Phoenix fowls, chickens whose males have tails attaining twenty-three feet of length; aside from being a novel sight or curiosity, this display is valuable in showing the possibilities of selective breeding, more than a century having been required in establishing this fancy breed in its present exceptional character.

Wonderful horticultural achievements are presented, both in the horticultural exhibits proper and in chosen garden spots variously located in the exposition grounds. The Japanese section has a wonderful Japanese garden transplanted—soil and all—from the Oriental country. The vegetation of the tropics is represented by banana trees, cocoanuts in bearing, gigantic tree ferns, hundreds of varieties of orchids, and characteristic botanical specimens from almost every tropical country. Magnificent new specimens of roses from England, Scotland, Ireland, France and all the famous rose-growing parts of the United States and other countries are entered in competition for the $1,000 trophy. Two acres in the horticultural garden are planted out in beautiful bulbs from Holland, the country bulb-famous.

A Reubens masterpiece from the Munich Art Gallery is one of the gems from the old country displayed among other notable works in fine arts. Fine Italian ceramics, too, are shown. Japanese satsuma and antiques, and the private art collection of Emperor Mutshuito are destined to center intense interest on the displays in the Japanese national pavilions.

The great advance the world has made in irrigation methods, making it possible to convert deserts into districts of agricultural wealth, independent of rainfall or of nearby streams, is the theme of extensive exhibits in the Palace of Agriculture.

Many unique displays, widely assorted, are found in every quarter of the great exposition.

The Palace of Transportation has a typical train used in logging operations, demonstrating also how the loading and unloading of the gigantic trees, the raw material of lumber, are managed.

A seven-ton cheese is the exhibit of the dairying industry of New York State.

Missouri's mining exhibits include a mammoth lump of coal weighing a full ton, distinguished as the largest specimen of its kind ever exhibited in perfect condition. A huge temple made of soap, and from which bubbles issue forth in an uninterrupted succession, is a novelty in the California State Building. Diamond exhibits and the methods of their extraction are made by the South African principalities. A wonderful collection of ostrich feathers and of eggs of all kinds of domestic fowls are among the exhibits made by the United States Government Department of Agriculture. Wonderfully spectacular and ingenious are the scenic exhibits worked in red, white and yellow corn by two of the greatest corn-growing states in the Union—Illinois and Missouri.

In the line of inventions great progress has been made in the past decade, and the point of development reached at the present day is graphically indicated by the many marvelous displays at this exposition.

Foremost perhaps are the exhibits demonstrating the achievement of wireless telephony and telegraphy. The Edison storage battery, one of the scientific marvels of the age, is demonstrated in reference to its usefulness in operating media of transportation, and for furnishing electricity for isolated farmhouses, that they and all outhouses may be electrically lighted throughout, and that the farmer may have his farm machinery run by power from the same source.

There is also the "Home Electrical," equipped throughout with conveniences that work themselves, thanks to the well-developed intricacies of their electrical interiors: cook stoves, electric fans, kitchen deodorizers, heating apparatus, mechanical musical instruments, a wonderful range of assorted articles even to electrical toys for the nursery.

For the first time, illuminating fixtures of the indirect and semi-indirect types are exhibited at this world's exposition. This patent is a very new device, based on a new curved type of reflecting surface and a dead white finish, produced by a secret chemical process; these fixtures also have the new high power nitrogen lamps.

A new system of interior illumination by indirect methods is seen also in Festival Hall. Here, in a pit beneath the center of the auditorium, are placed ten high-power searchlights, set so as to throw their rays upward into a plate of heavy diffusing glass, sand blasted on the underside, and which spreads a soft glow over the entire interior, the dome assisting by reflection. This diffusing set is set in an aperture forming the collar of the pit. Special cooling devices are necessary for the lenses of the searchlights, owing to the extreme heat; streams of water are run over the surface.

Among other electrical inventions for registering purposes is a clever device in the way of an ampere or watt hour meter equipped also with a printing attachment for use on street cars. It has two sets of dials: one to show the amount of current consumed by the car on each trip, the other totaling the full current consumption.

The United States Government is the heaviest of all single exhibitors in the exposition's entire list. Of timely interest is the display in the Palace of Machinery, where the visitor can see the manufacture of arms and armament, and all of the technical and mechanical side of the army and navy in operation. Here also is an exhibit of the lighthouse department, and a miniature model of a naval drydock.

Apart from their fundamental purpose of furnishing amusement, the concessions on the "Zone" present elements of exhibitiv interest. The "Maori Village," for instance, shows one of the celebrated Maori carved houses, borrowed from the New Zealand Government. This is the first time on record that such an object has ever been permitted to leave that country. This is an exhibit remarkable for its art value and for the sacred traditions attached. The carvings typify the great epochs in the development of the warrior aborigines of New Zealand, who practiced cannibalism up to about fifty years ago.

STATE AND FOREIGN PARTICIPATION.

The great educational importance of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is largely due to the remarkable extent of the State and foreign participation which breaks all records established by previous expositions of this class.

The states of the union which are represented officially are Alabama, Arkansas, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, South Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Philippines, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Most of these states have erected pavilions on the exposition grounds, which serve the two-fold purpose of furnishing a meeting place and general social center for the "people from home" as well as providing display quarters supplementing, by characteristic showings, the exhibits made in the various palaces of exhibition.

California, being the hostess state, has the largest and most costly building of all. It is built in the romantic Spanish mission style of architecture, harking back to the first pages of the State's history. The equipped structure represents an outlay in excess of $2,000,000.

In many cases the state building, in its architectural features, typifies some individual State characteristic or associated fact. Massachusetts, for example, has duplicated her State house. New Jersey's building is representative of the Trenton Barracks. Oregon has reproduced the Parthenon, using gigantic fir pillars instead of the marble columns of the ancient structure of Grecian days. Ohio has built her pavilion in replica of the State Capitol at Columbus. Maryland's building is reminiscent of the historic abode of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Indiana has erected a building after the ideals of a typical Hoosier home. Virginia has duplicated Washington's Mount Vernon home. Other states represented by buildings, as well as by exhibits, are Arkansas, Idaho, Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Pennsylvania, Mississippi, North Dakota, Nevada, New York, Utah, Texas, West Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin, and the Island States—Hawaii and the Philippines. New York City, in a handsome Graeco-Roman structure of great cost and beauty, is the only municipality in the world having a special pavilion in the state and foreign group.

The officially participating foreign nations are Austria, Argentina, Australia, Bolivia, Belgium, Canada, Cuba, China, Denmark, France, Greece, Guatemala, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Persia, Portugal, Sweden, Siam, Turkey, and Uruguay. Great Britain, Germany, India and Switzerland, though not represented by a participation springing from a national appropriation, are represented in splendid fashion by the exhibits of citizens' and manufacturers' committees.

Much of the charm and romantic savor of the buildings in the foreign group lies in the fact that they have embodied in their architecture the exotic ideas characteristic of buildings in the countries represented. France has built a remarkable pavilion imitative of the Legion of Honor in Paris. Australia's building symbolizes the industrial cohesiveness of her several states, the idea being conveyed by the inscription of the names of the various sections of that commonwealth on the outer walls of the structure. China and Japan both have quaint and thoroughly Oriental quarters, China's building being representative of the Forbidden City, surrounded by a high wall. Other national buildings have been erected by Bolivia, Argentina, Canada, Cuba, Denmark, Guatemala, Honduras, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Panama, Portugal, Norway, Sweden, Turkey, and Siam.

TEN MILLION DOLLARS OF FUN ON THE "ZONE."

Rounding out the general completeness of the exposition is the "Zone," the amusement street, whose 35 acres of concessions offer the exposition visitor in a mirthful mood more than a mile of attractions. Here is a great international carnival of fun, ten million dollars' worth of it, that amount conservatively estimated being the approximate aggregate investment represented there. Out of more than 7,000 applicants, but 100 concessionaries were chosen, the idea being to assemble for this exposition only the most novel, most original, and most enjoyable series of amusement concessions that the world has yet been able to produce.

"Toyland Grown Up" is one of the most original of the amusement concessions. This is a clever conception, showing Toyland with the most famous characters and places of the realm of toys and the fairy-tale kingdom represented in gigantic form.

Other notable concessions of this group are the mechanical reproduction of the Dayton Flood, Creation, Shamrock Isle, Jester's Palace, London to the South Pole, Living Incubators, Diving Girls, '49 Camp, Russian Theater, Dixie Land, Safety Racer, Evolution of the Dreadnaught, the Aeroscope, the Submarine, The Race for Life, Alligator Farm Circus, Battle of Gettysburg, and Bowls of Joy, a new kind of ride. In addition to this list there are numerous other concessions, such as that of the famous Cawston Ostrich Farm showing 100 giant birds and baby chicks; there are wonderful scenic replicas of the Panama Canal and of Yellowstone National Park, the Souvenir Watch Palace, a variety of eating places, interesting, quaint villages, comfort stations, and booths devoted to the dispensing of sweets and beverages. A wonderful, good time, day and night, will be in everlasting progress throughout the duration of the exposition. Childhood and old age alike will revel in the delights offered.

SPECIAL EVENTS.

One of the many respects in which this exposition excels all predecessors is in the lengthy list of special events planned in connection with the régime of the exposition proper. Band concerts and pipe organ recitals by day and illumination displays by night are regular features. CALIFORNIA'S PARTICIPATION IN THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

THE CALIFORNIA BUILDING.

Naturally, the State of California is participating in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition on a lavish scale. Being the hostess State for the Exposition, this would be expected; being a State of such exceptional size and possessed of such an infinitude of varied attractions, resources, wealth, and potential opportunities, this is made possible.

This Exposition marks the first time in the history of California that the fifty-eight counties of the State have unified in one great undertaking in the installation of displays representative of all sections of the State, all arrayed under one roof.

Under a special Act of the Legislature of the State of California the County Boards of Supervisors were given the Constitutional authority to levy a special tax, not to exceed six cents per $100 assessable valuation, to be known as an Exposition Fund, and the Supervisors were also authorized to appoint commissioners to expend the funds so raised. More than $2,000,000 was obtained by this means, and of that amount an aggregate of $1,250,000 was set aside for specific application to the collection, installation and maintenance of the county displays in the Display Division of the California Building.

CALIFORNIA BUILDING IS ROMANTIC, SPACIOUS AND COSTLY.

The California Building at the Exposition, the scene of the State's comprehensive displays, is a romantic, spacious and costly structure, distinguished as being the finest, most elaborate and most pretentious from every standpoint of all State buildings or National pavilions ever erected at any Exposition.

Located at the water's edge on the shore of the San Francisco Bay, just within the Golden Gate, and alluding by its architecture to the early days of the mission fathers, the building thus unites in the mind of the visitor the typical scenic charm of the State and the romance of its exploration. The design of the building, the work of Thomas H. F. Burditt, architect, combines the four different types of mission architecture. In the patio, about which it is constructed, is a replica of the famous Forbidden Garden of the Santa Barbara Mission, centered by a fountain, and surrounded by a living hedge planted over forty years ago. A statue of Junipero Serra, father of the missions, stands in the center of the north facade. The dimensions of the building are approximately 726 feet in length and 434 feet in width, and the area covered, including the patio, is seven and one-half acres. The ground floor of the building proper is five acres in extent. Four acres are occupied by the Display Division, besides 30,000 square feet on the mezzanine floor. Besides extensive display quarters, the building includes administrative offices, the host and entertainment section, the Woman's Board Headquarters and seven moving picture rooms and lecture halls with an aggregate seating capacity for 2,000 people which will be used by the participating counties of the State for picturing their points of scenic interest, their industries and their resources. More than 70,000 feet of moving picture film have been prepared for this purpose. The cost of the California State Building, built and furnished, exceeds $2,000,000.

COUNTIES MAKE DISPLAYS BY COLLECTIVE PLAN.

The general, underlying plan of the California display is collective. Rather than presenting fifty separate displays—one for each county—the State have been divided into units of sectional groups, and within the groups the displays are classified usually by resources rather than by localities.

The largest of these groups is the one embracing the Sacramento Valley and foothill counties, including Amador, Butte, Colusa, El Dorado, Glenn, Placer, Plumas, Nevada, Sutter, Sacramento, Shasta, Solano, Tehama, Trinity, Yolo, Yuba, Alpine and Sierra. In the San Joaquin Valley group are the counties of Calaveras, Fresno, Kings, Merced, Mariposa, Madera, Stanislaus and San Joaquin. The Southern California division comprises Imperial, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego and Ventura counties. The Central Coast counties include Monterey, San Benito, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, San Mateo and San Luis Obispo. The North Bay group includes Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino and Sonoma counties. The remaining counties are represented by individual displays: Alameda, Santa Barbara, Contra Costa, Lake, Siskiyou, Kern, Tulare, Lassen, Napa, Tuolumne, Marin, Modoc, San Francisco, Mono and Inyo.

DISPLAYS CONSTITUTE CALIFORNIA IN EPITOME.

The California display as a whole is a wonderful show, and every detail is weighted with romance, significance and interest. It is at once an industrial, agricultural and horticultural fair, a treasury of artistic work, a condensation of the State's varied scenic splendors as well as her flora and fauna; a review of California's accomplishments, and an index of the breadth of her future possibilities. In short, the displays as a whole constitute California in epitome. They are an eloquent testimonial to the greatness of the State and to the energy and ingenuity of her population.

Throughout the whole vast display one is impressed by the wide range of resources and products claimed by every section, as well as by the State as a whole. This very circumstance has made it impossible, in grouping the various displays, to give any one county or section a special preference for features. For example, out of fifty-eight counties, fifty-three are mineral producers, forty-eight are in advanced stages of horticultural and agricultural development, and twenty are famous as educational centers. Seven counties of California represent in their aggregate the largest redwood timber stands in the world, and the largest pine timber stands in the United States. Another evidence of the marvelous range of productivity of California is the fact that the orange belt, so famously identified with southern California, is now extended and duplicated 700 miles farther north; in fact, the oranges of the northern belt reach the market in advance of the southern crop.

DISPLAY OF SACRAMENTO VALLEY AND FOOTHILL COUNTIES.

An appreciation of the varied displays of the different sections of the State rests first upon some knowledge of the general conditions in the counties represented. The sectional group embracing the Sacramento Valley and foothill counties of California covers an immense range of productivities, and it is in this section that the greatest water and mining resources of the West exist. Accordingly, in the displays of these counties, a dominant feature pertains to the river transportation facilities of the Sacramento region, the idea being conveyed by a miniature reproduction of the Sacramento River, with a real working model of a river steamboat, costing $2,000, and equipped completely, as a boat built for real service—machinery, electric lights, furniture and every other detail.

The Sacramento section has done considerable in harnessing water power for industrial purposes. In this section is located the great Orland project, one of the federal government's irrigation units, which is the forerunner of several more now in contemplation and preparation which will make the northern part of California a Mecca for prospective homeseekers, both from foreign countries and other sections of America. One of the irrigation projects now under congressional investigation alone provides for watering, from the Sacramento River and tributaries, 900,000 acres of land, which, with the water added, will increase in value incalculably. All this finds full representation in the display of this section at the exposition. A model of a hydroelectric power plant, for instance, is shown in actual operation generating power from water, making use of it first for industrial purposes, and later for irrigation. In northern California is located the source of the two largest hydroelectric systems on the Pacific Coast.

In this section of the State is located the greatest area of sulphide ore deposits in the world, with the single exception of the Lake region of the middle west. The copper output from this part of the State is ninety-five per cent of the entire output of this metal from California. Likewise, located here are the greatest manganese and silver deposits of the State. Here, too, is the greatest placer mining development in America, and the greatest gold dredging industry in the world. The importance of the mineral resources of this part of the State is suggested by the extent of their exploitation through the displays in the California building at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, involving more than forty varieties of commercial minerals. There is also a working model of a ten-stamp quartz mill, complete with concentrator and all equipment. There is also a model hydraulic mine, and a model gold dredger built to operate. Supplementing these displays are spectacular panoramic models of great size and splendor.

In the historic days of "forty-nine," and for a generation thereafter, California was known as the land of gold, and is still referred to as such, but the section of the State covered by this displaying group of counties quickly became one of the greatest granaries of the world, and from grain to horticulture was not a far step—with water at hand. Consequently, now, the products of field, vineyard and orchard (irrigated products in general) are a very large part of the total products exported, not only from California, but particularly from the Sacramento Valley and foothill counties. Naturally such products are featured extensively in the display made by this group at the Exposition. Fresh fruits and processed and dried fruits in abundance are shown. Further emphasizing the variety of products of this section are the displays of olive oil, tobacco, ostrich plumes, wines, cereals of many kinds, vegetable fibres such as hemp and flax, leather, woods, nuts, dairy products, hops, grains, sugar and rice.

There is a display of dried fruits, more than 1,500 boxes of this varied commodity being utilized in the formation of the structure. Combs of honey are displayed serving as the base of an enormous bee hive. Rice is shown typifying the crop from 17,000 acres, and its by-products in all stages from stalk to sack. Bales of forage crops from the structural basis of the dairy display, which includes refrigerated products. The forestry resources of the counties are displayed by commercial samples of wood—sugar pine, yellow pine, fir and cedar representing the soft woods; oak, madrone and California walnut representing the hard woods. An exquisite, highly polished table made of the California walnut is a feature in the central structure of the display section. From the cornice to the dome this structure is a replica of the California State Capitol building located at Sacramento; here is the comfort station and information bureau provided by these counties. More than four hundred mounted specimens of the wild life—birds and mammals—inhabiting these various counties are a educational group among the displays. In the Sacramento Valley section of the great gallery running the full length of the four walls of the California building are sixteen cabinets showing the handiwork of the women of the Sacramento Valley region; also paintings done by the artists of the district, and 2,000 square feet devoted to the displays of the schools of the counties, of which a nursery, containing exclusively furniture, etc., made by the school students of the district is a feature.

DISPLAY OF THE SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY COUNTIES.

In a measure these counties follow closely the line of productivity of the Sacramento Valley, the two together forming the agricultural backbone of the State. The counties of the San Joaquin belt are fed by one of the great streams of the State, the San Joaquin River, and, being in a somewhat warmer section, the fruit growing and fruit drying advantages are superior to those of the northern part of the State. Fresno County, for example, is universally conceded to be one of the greatest raisin and prune producing sections of the entire world.

With the single exception of Los Angeles County, more new settlers have migrated to the San Joaquin Valley counties in the last decade than to any other part of the State, indicating sufficiently that the homeseeker, looking for a competency on a small acreage, has followed the results of horticultural activities that have been proven a success by the leading horticulturists of California.

In this section of the State, too, is located the marvelous Yosemite Valley, the premier scenic wonder of the world which is the eventual goal of practically every tourist. While various routes lead the way to this great national reservation, all converge at one common gateway through the San Joaquin. Operating with Merced and El Portal as its termini, is the Yosemite Valley Railroad, the only railroad route to that famous, picturesque valley.

With such marvelous attractions and resources to exploit, the San Joaquin Valley counties in arranging their display at the Exposition have had a wonderful basis for one of the most spectacular and picturesquely charming exhibitions to be found in the entire California State building. The varied group of displays is contained within the confines of a most ornate facade decorated with vines typical of the territory represented, tinted in beautiful colors.

Lining the handsome facade and decorating the arches are artistic arrangements of cereals and forage specimens. The "Palace of Plenty" is the central structural feature of this display. It is an effective combination of black and gold decorated most artistically in grains and fruits, and provides, inside, a circular arcade with displays of fruits on either side. A mountain typical of the scenic attractions in the more rugged parts of the San Joaquin belt is located near the "Palace of Plenty," and in its hollow is situated a lecture room. Each county represented in this displaying group has an individual panoramic model shown favorably under illumination, and Yosemite Valley reproduced in miniature is the foremost sightseeing feature of the whole California building. This model, the work of Joseph H. Thullen, a gifted artist, modeler and sculptor, represents Yosemite as viewed from Artist's Point, and presents Bridal Veil Falls in the foreground, while all the other noted charms of the valley are to be seen in their true locations. This remarkable replica, contained in a spacious proscenium, is 22½ feet deep, 18 feet wide, and 17½ feet high, and the scheme of illumination provided for its display changes the view successfully from sunrise to broad daylight, thence to an amber glow, a crimson glow, and sunset. A wonderful gallery of enlarged photographs, colored in oil, depicts the floral beauties, the fruit-growing possibilities, and typical farm and scenic views of the country. These, too, are the work of Mr. Thullen.

DISPLAY OF THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA COUNTIES.

The seven counties designated as southern California have shown the most marvelous immigration and financial development of any section in the world. From a comparatively small village, twenty-five years ago, Los Angeles City has swelled to a great municipality, and the assessed valuation of Los Angeles County is the greatest of any in the State. While climate was responsible for the influx of the first settlers and tourists, thereafter it was water obtained for irrigating the marvelous orange belt. Among the multiform crops of America one of the most lucrative of any is the ceaseless tourist crop of southern California. It requires no weather conditions; merely the cycle of seasons of successive years to increase it in productiveness. It is the largest, most potential and most advantageously garnered crop in America today.

Though possessed of an abundance of matchless scenic attractions, the southern California counties have modestly refrained from making that asset a foremost feature in their unified display at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, but have limited their showing to their mutual resources and industries.

The varied displays are grouped within a facade typical of the Mission architecture which is romantically identified with the south-lying counties of California. Here are shown attractively such products as dates, wines, canned goods in great variety, olives and olive oil, chili peppers, the three citrus fruits—oranges, lemons and grapefruit—dried fruits, grains, cotton, honey, soap, art tiles, steel goods, seeds, gems, and ostrich plumes.

Noteworthy features, from the spectacular standpoint, are: the great temple of soap, using seven tons of this product for the structure in which is a fountain issuing forth soap bubbles unceasingly; the bear modeled in beeswax, shown in connection with the honey display; idealistic and practical transparencies, wonderful pictures, resembling oil paintings at a short distance, but worked cleverly in vari-colored seeds, ornamenting the booth in which the displays of the seed industry are featured; cotton in bale and in its variety of by-products. Mounted game birds and remarkable fish caught from the coast of southern California decorate a picturesque wall of the section occupied by these seven counties; and the information bureau, centrally located, is a Spanish mission structure.

DISPLAYS OF THE CENTRAL COAST COUNTIES.

The group designated by the phrase "central coast," embraces the counties that owe their fame to the advent of the early missionaries, and to the tourists of later years. From Santa Barbara on the south to San Mateo northward, bordering closely on to the city of San Francisco, there is almost an unbroken stretch of summer and winter resorts and residence centers that make this section one of the most desirable in the western domain of the United States. Fruits, especially apples, reach their highest market value in the Santa Cruz section; that county alone grows more than 2,000,000 apple trees. Reference to any of those cities brings to mind the history of the itinerary and settlement of the first missionaries and suggests the restfulness and peace pervading the spots where they made their abode. Santa Clara County is the great educational center of the central coast division.

Practically all these influences are noted in the displays made by these counties at the Exposition.

The Monterey corner, in addition to a characteristic showing of agricultural and horticultural products, has on display an interesting collection of relics calling to mind the historical facts that Monterey was the first county organized in the State, also the State's first capital, and the seat of the State's first custom house. Here there is a replica of the original custom house, and the original Spanish flag pole is shown in actuality. There is also a chair made from the wood of the tree under which Father Junipero Serra preached his first California sermon. And there are busts of the early Padres, and a $40,000 private collection of curios loaned for exhibition by the owner.

An ornate, revolving centerpiece showing processed fruits, is a central feature of Santa Clara's display, and, distributed throughout the section devoted to this county, are processed flowers in magnificent specimens. Flowers constitute an integral part of this county's display, poppies and fruit blossoms being refreshed daily by supplies from that locality. A painting, 10 by 15 feet, by Charles H. Harrison of San Jose, reveals pictorially the sublime and dainty beauty of the "Santa Clara Valley in Blossom Time," while enlargements of photographs afford a wealth of individual, localized views. The rest-room fountain in this section is the design of the students of the San Jose High School.

Enjoying fame as the county of floral culture, San Mateo, in her display, has specialized on that phase of her attractions. As a result, the bas-relief map of the county, situated in a handsome, strikingly attractive Moorish pavilion, is surrounded by wonderful hot-house blooms and other flowers of irresistible beauty.

Fruits, cereals and ferns in abundance are the basic features of Santa Cruz County's displays. Two redwood balconies contain the great apple displays, and an imposing spectacle is the array of trophies won by that county at apple shows. There is also an aquarium in this section, representing the only county in the State owning and controlling its fish hatchery.

The fundamental resources of San Luis Obispo County are displayed by specimens of varied agricultural and horticultural products; dairy commodities, honey, beans and grains are featured. The natural beauty of the county is shown by a gallery of pictures. And an added item of interest in the display of San Luis Obispo is a collection of curios, including shark's teeth estimated to be 200,000 years old, also fossil remains, and other articles of like character.

DISPLAY OF THE NORTH BAY COUNTIES.

The counties north of the San Francisco Bay are known and loved as the home of the rugged redwoods. The industry derived from those great trees represents probably the greatest amount of capital in any single industry in California, and is the part of the vast lumber industry that provides the largest pay roll in the State. Mendocino and Humboldt counties are among the greatest timber and scenic sections of the entire West, and, with the recently acquired advantage of a railroad through these sections, tapping the main arteries of commerce, it is expected that these two counties will be among those to obtain the greatest benefits from increased shipping. Petaluma in Sonoma County is the greatest poultry raising section in California, her egg output being $6,000,000 annually.

Both Humboldt and Mendocino counties have featured the redwood extensively in their displays, and with most spectacular effects. The "Stump House," in which paintings of the redwood glories of the Humboldt locality are contained, is a hollowed redwood stump of a tree measuring 300 feet high, 20 feet in diameter at the stump, with 150 feet from the stump to the first limb, and 8 feet in diameter at the first limb. The paintings shown here are wonderful works of art, and tell realistically the story of the natural grandeur of the county. A handsome, highly polished, burl table made of one solid piece of wood, 6 feet in diameter, is the central feature of the furnishings of the "Stump House." A collection of Indian baskets made by native Indians of Humboldt is another feature on exhibition here. The great saw, 24 feet long, that sawed the tree for the "Stump House" is displayed outside. Other features, besides fruits, are an aquarium of Humboldt trout, mounted birds and deer, typifying wild life in the redwood country, a miniature of a typical Eureka (Humboldt County) home; a $500 hand-carved saddle, representing the tanning industry; a wonderful display of roses and poppies modeled in natural colors from butter, worked by Mrs. J. L. Cookeley, representing the dairy industry; a lighthouse made of glasses of jelly, and a relief map of Humboldt County, 16 by 12 feet.

A railway map joins the Humboldt and Mendocino displays together, illustrating the closeness of these two counties in geographical proximity as well as in similarity of resources and environment. Fruits and ferns compose a good part of Mendocino's display. Mounted specimens of the wild life inhabiting the county are shown. And, among other features, is a lighthouse made of corn and grain, with a collection of sea shells ornamenting the base.

Like the county represented, Sonoma's display is characterized by scenic beauty. Ferns, native of the locality, are used lavishly; there are features of hops and growing vines; Luther Burbank's ribbon corn, artichokes, beardless barley, and potatoes are among the horticultural and agricultural products shown. Others are grapes, apples, pears, figs, berries, prunes, peaches, melons, plums, grain and nuts—the latter including the product of the largest Franquette grove in the world. A wine cellar, made of redwood bark and decorated with ferns, houses the winery display of Sonoma. Oranges from the Cloverdale section are shown abundantly. A Ferris wheel, made of white leghorn and barred rock feathers, represents the importance of the poultry industry as carried on in Sonoma.

Enclosing the displays of the north-bay counties is a handsome, polished redwood facade, with burl panels, representing a cost of $20,000, the cynosure of all eyes that take in the Exposition.

DISPLAYS MADE BY COUNTIES INDIVIDUALLY.

Lake County, through models, photographs and paintings, depicts the scenic charms of the county famous for the picturesque characteristic indicated by its name.

Tuolumne County offers as its most valuable display, $30,000 worth of gold with specimen ores weighing sixty tons. Cereals, both sheafed and thrashed, are another display item. There are 100 jars of processed fruits. And of the 200 pictures used as a condensed display feature, 52 compose a scenic line pictorially, describing the road to Yosemite via Oak Flat to Sonora, showing the marvelous scenery en route.

Lassen County is represented variously: by a scenic model of characteristic mountain scenery and wild birds and animals, native of the county; by Indian baskets—the work of various tribes living in the county, and which is a costly private collection; by grains and natural grasses; by a photograph of Mt. Lassen in eruption, and by a painting of famous old Susanville in 1864.

The display of Siskiyou County reveals a wider variety of resources than any other county represented. Wonderful mountain scenery is shown by photographs, also by a gallery of oil paintings by H. T. Spaller, a Siskiyou artist. Both hunter and tourist are attracted by the county display of furs. The kinds of fish that inhabit the streams of picturesque Siskiyou are shown processed and living; lumbering, horticulture and agriculture, too, have adequate representation, but the greatest feature of all in this county's display is the one representing its mining resources. A valuable gold display is made in a cement enclosure, whose entrance is built of stones from the county (twelve varieties included); the interior is finished richly in bas-relief work in gold and white, with the ceiling decorated with rich sulphide ores; mirrors and a strong light together heighten the effect by giving the display the appearance of spaciousness and a dazzling quality.

The display made by Contra Costa County is mainly industrial. Being the seat of the largest manufacturing plants in the State; boasting of manufacturing works valued at $197,000,000, and with factory pay rolls aggregating $12,000,000, this county has had an abundance of material to draw from in arranging the display for the Exposition. The displays pertain to the products of powder mills, oil refineries, sugar factories, chemical works, smelters, steel pipe companies, porcelainware factories, redwood tank and pipe factories, wineries and canneries.

An imposing feature of the structural phase of Napa County's display is the tufa stone bridge, 87 feet long, using 100 tons of tufa stone from Napa quarries, and having three open archways of which the central one spans 36 feet. An elaborate scenic model shows a composite bit of the scenery typical of the county, featuring Madrone Falls, stone bridges, and the excellent roads for which the county is noted. The diversity of products of the county is indicated by the miscellaneous display of nuts, fruits, wines, olive oil, grape juice, cider, mineral waters, corn, grain and leather goods. An exceptional item in Napa's display is a collection of silk worms and raw silk from the Woman's Silk Culture Society of California, whose experimental station is at Father Crawley's ranch in Napa County. This county's display is further unique in having a panorama of Napa Valley shown by the largest photograph ever brought to the Pacific Coast, the dimensions being 22 feet by 40 inches.

Tulare and Kern counties have their displays jointly. Citrus and deciduous fruits and dairy products are the basis of Tulare's showing. A spectacular feature is a large cornucopia, made of butter from which pours forth a generous supply of golden coins also modeled in butter. Transparencies and photographs are used abundantly in picturing for the visitor the scenery and industrial pursuits of the county. A feature is made of the orange display, and grains and grasses are used with artistic effect in decorating the columns of the booth. Kern county's part of the joint display includes a scenic railway model trimmed with nuts; there is also a miniature working oil well, as well as a showing of the oils and by-products:

a structural display of citrus fruits, supplemented by transparencies; two large giant bamboos, from the largest giant bamboo grove in the United States; a dairy exhibit, including a Jersey cow which is the subject for a milking demonstration.

The display made by Santa Barbara County occupies the two sides along the east aisle of the California building at the east main entrance. On one side is a wonderful replica of the Santa Barbara Mission, founded in 1786, and on the other is a structure also idealizing the Spanish mission architecture; paintings adorn each archway, and processed fruits are ranged in view. The entrance to Santa Barbara's space is enhanced by exquisite paintings loaned by the Sunset Magazine Company.

The central feature of Alameda County's display is in form of a big wheel of which the Alameda county cities represent the hub, comprising a metropolitan population of 375,000 people. Within the great circle is a model, showing the block signal system in operation, and all the transcontinental and local trains are represented in miniature, the object of the display being to show the central location of Alameda County with regard to transportation facilities. Surrounding this great wheel are supplementary displays concerned with the products of farm and factory.

The display made by Marin County, is a unique achievement. Occupying a distinctly appropriate space, Marin has brought her whole county, with its great wealth of scenic glories, to the eyes of all exposition visitors who stroll to the Marin display section. The county is not represented in replica, in picture, nor in any style of miniature or reproduction, but in actuality. A commodious seat of indescribable comfort, in an atmosphere made luxurious by paintings and decorations of ferns, and made romantic by reminiscent decorations harking back to the time of Sir Francis Drake, is situated by a large window overlooking the bay of San Francisco, giving the visitor an unobstructed view of beautiful Marin County with her redwoods and her hills, and her sublime Mount Tamalpais towering majestically above all.

CALIFORNIA-BOUND TRAVEL ENORMOUS THIS YEAR.

That visitors to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition are to pour into San Francisco in unprecedented numbers, starting with February and continuing with increasing momentum well into late fall, is the consensus of opinion derived from the reports made by the traffic managers of the railroads operating lines to San Francisco. When taxed to maximum capacity the Southern Pacific Company is able to bring 180,000 people per day to San Francisco via the bay trip from Oakland mole, and 60,000 more from the depot at Third and Townsend streets; the Santa Fe is prepared to handle a daily crowd of 15,000 passengers to the same destination; the Northwestern Pacific, landing its patrons right at the Exposition grounds, is ready for 25,000 per day, and the Western Pacific for 5,000 daily, a grand total of 285,000.

The Key Route transbay line is prepared to bring 6,000 passengers hourly from Oakland, Berkeley and Piedmont direct to the Exposition grounds, besides the thousands who will travel that line to the San Francisco Ferry Building down town before going to the Exposition site.

PANAMA-CALIFORNIA EXPOSITION.

The City of San Diego is celebrating the completion of the Panama Canal by holding an exposition to commemorate the opening to the commerce of the world of the great waterway. By virtue of its location, it being the first port of call in the United States from the canal; on account of its harbor, which is one of the best and safest of any body of water in the world, due to its location, 500 miles closer to the cities of the south, and 300 miles nearer the cities and manufacturing centers of the middle west and east; owing to the fact that having the most equable climate in the world, cool in summer and warm in winter (the average temperature during the winter season being 61 degrees) it will be possible to keep the exposition open every day during the year; by reason that this is the natural supply point for the southern portion of the state, the entire southwest, Lower California and the port to which will be brought for distribution the products of South America and the Orient, and due to the further fact that its resources are many and varied, that its beach and mountain resorts are unexcelled, and that from a scenic standpoint, it stands without a peer in the habitable world.

The exposition, the plan for which embraces 400 acres, opened January 1, 1915, and will be kept open the entire year.

All architecture and all ensembles of architecture and landscape are in the beautiful Spanish colonial or "mission" style. The exposition covers the southwestern United States, Mexico, Central and South America, and it is in those countries that the Latin-American architecture grew to its greatest beauty. The exposition is a mission city in white, cement construction throughout, set in a California landscape, the most beautiful that can be devised.

The main entrance to the exposition grounds is at Laurel street and Park avenue on the west side of Cabrillo Canyon. A causeway and bridge lead to the east side of the canyon, where rise the main buildings of the Exposition, surrounding a central rectangular court. From the gate at Laurel street to the eastern end of the bridge are ornamental plazas and esplanades, all within the exposition grounds. The entrance to the central court of honor is through this group of buildings.

Leading south from the court of honor is a street that debouches into a rectangular plaza, rounded on the ends, the Plaza de las Republicas America. At the south side of this plaza is the huge ethnological building, a structure that is built in the old Spanish-American style, with a patio. To the west and down the mesa from this building are the state and foreign buildings.

The main buildings, being on the axis, or central, line of the bridge, are grouped around these formal courts, and include the California, Art, Agriculture, Horticulture, both Liberal Arts and Machinery, United States government and Mining exhibit buildings.

North of this group are the huge botanical gardens with the finest and most extensive lath house ever built. The lath house is something like 600 feet square and 100 feet high, with a central court for band concerts, fountains and other features. Surrounding it are the plantations of the different great seed houses of the world. Here are also the outdoor exhibits, such as those from the reclamation, conservation and forest services of the government and the great Indian congress, with the villages and fields of the aborigines, cliff dwellings and pueblos.

Across Spanish Canyon is a dam impounding a lagoon used as an auxiliary water supply for the city fire department, a reservoir of 50,000,000 gallons capacity, with a head of 210 feet and a pressure at D street of something like 65 pounds to the square inch. Around this lagoon are grouped ornamental trees, vines and flowers, and all connected with the general park system as a permanent feature.

The bridge and causeway, which are a system of parked esplanade from Laurel street straight into the center of the park, are permanent, as is the lagoon on the east side of the mesa in Spanish Canyon. All of the grading, street and road work are so arranged that when the buildings are removed there will be a system of roads and streets, with ornamental centers, lined and surrounded with groves of trees and flowering bushes, the erstwhile foundation spaces being sodded with bluegrass, irrigated from a 14-inch pipe line that enters the park on the north and leads to the south end of the park, where it connects with the city water mains. The sewer system is laid to connect up with the city system.

All grading and street work under this plan are a part of the permanent improvement of the park, and are put in with that idea in view, the construction of the exposition itself at all times being a means of beautifying the park.

The buildings occupy a foundation space of about 145 acres. Added to this is the space required for the formal gardens, outdoor exhibits, for streets and courts, the whole space requiring about 400 acres. Added to other advantages is that of building the exposition on comparatively level, high ground. The section of concessions and privileges, "El Rodeo," is on level ground.

Features of the Panama-California Exposition are a world congress of Indian tribes, gathered from the Straits of Magellan to the Yukon river; exhibits from the United States reclamation, forestration, conservation and immigration bureaus; archæological material, the most complete ever gathered in America, covering the entire American continent; ethnology, embracing all the peoples that ever lived on the continent, the ancient ruins and relics, the beautiful and unique and striking things from all these countries, reciting the history of the aborigines of America back to the remotest known and legendary times, discovery and conquest of America, and last, but not least, opportunity, the opportunity that has come to the Pacific coast of the Americas through the opening of the Panama Canal.

Nearly every Latin-American government is participating.

THE STATE FLOWER.

The Golden Poppy—Eschscholtzia Californica—The Flame Flower—La Amapola—Copa de Oro (Cup of Gold).

BY PRENTISS MASLIN.

In 1815 Otto Von Kotzebue, the son of a popular German dramatist, sailed in the good ship "Rurick" on a voyage of discovery and exploration around the world, under the patronage of Count Romanzoff of Russia. This was a scientific expedition, and carried with it Louis Charles Adelaide de Chamisso as naturalist and Johann Fredrick Eschscholtz as surgeon. The voyage lasted three years, from 1815 to 1818, and de Chamisso was the first naturalist to picture and describe the Golden Poppy of California, and, in honor of his friend, gave it the name of Eschscholtzia for him, and Californica for its birthplace.

Dr. Eschscholtz was born in Dorpat, Germany, in 1793, and died in 1831. He made a second voyage with Von Kotzebue in 1823, and wrote a description of over two thousand animals, which was published in 1830 with Kotzebue's narrative of his explorations.

De Chamisso was a poet and naturalist. He was born in Champagne, in France, in 1781, and emigrated as a boy to Berlin; he was a page to the Queen of Prussia, and served in the Prussian army. In 1808 he forsook the profession of arms, and applied himself to natural sciences, in which he greatly distinguished himself, becoming the most noted naturalist of Europe of his time. He published several books on natural history, among them being the "Description of a Voyage around the World," and in 1820 published drawings and a description of the Eschscholtzia. (It is but just to mention the fact that Professor Luis Née, the botanist of Malaspina's expedition, which visited California in 1791, published a description of the Poppy in Madrid, Spain, in the same year, 1820.) De Chamisso was a member of the Academy of Sciences in Berlin, and died in 1838.

The Golden Poppy, as it is commonly called, has anything but an agreeable perfume, but its wonderful coloring, and its incomparable, satin-like sheen, have been the wonder, delight and admiration of all lovers of nature. Growing, as it does, throughout the length and breadth of the State, and hardly elsewhere, it is peculiarly typical of California, and in 1903, under an act of the Legislature, was made the State flower. No great poem has been written about this flower, and probably none ever will be, because it appeals to the artistic sense rather than to the poetic. It blooms in the greatest profusion from February until May, though specimens of the flower can be had in the lower valleys of California almost any day in the year. In the flood tide of its season, when this matchless flower raises itself above the feathery green foliage of the plant, which is tipped with a deep, bronze red, it covers acres upon acres of the plains and mesas, and presents a sight which once seen is never forgotten.

The California Poppy is a brazen, garish flower. It shuns the woodland, and, unsheltered, fairly revels in the warm sunlight. It possesses none of the modesty of the violet, the sweetness of the lily, nor the beauty of the rose, but standing alone and unique, it compels our admiration because of its wonderful coloring and sheen, which refuse to be transferred by the limner's art to board or canvas. It wins its place by its transcendent beauty, and lovers of nature, having once reveled therein, the memory of it lives a lifetime.

The Indians of the northern Sacramento Valley used the Poppy leaves for a food, boiling it as a green, while the Spanish Californians and Indians of the southern part of the State used the oil derived from the plant as a hairdressing. In art, the oil expressed from the seeds of the Poppy is extensively used, while it also has a valued place in the pharmacopœia.

The Poppy resists efforts toward its domestication and cultivation, and even grows sparsely in cultivated fields. It needs the wild, unbroken land to bloom in all its regal beauty. Most flowers are connected with legends or have their distinctive place in folk-lore, and many efforts have been made to weave around this flower Indian traditions and legends, few of which, however, bear the impress of authenticity. The best and most authentic legend connected with this flower purports to be told in a verse or chant of the Indians of southern California of the time when there was a great drought and vegetation died, and pestilence and famine came upon the land, and intense cold existed, until all the Indians perished save two, Manona (man) and his young squaw Mahala (woman). In dire distress, they left the land of their forefathers and journeyed south in search of relief from their destination, and of a land where vegetation grew and where they could exist; offering up, each night and morn, their devout prayers to the great Spirit of the Red Man. These prayers were heard, and the Great Spirit sent the "Fire Flower" to drive away the evil spirit of the cold and frost, and to fill the land with warmth and plenty. If this legend is authentic, the California Poppy is doubly typical of the great State of California, with its perpetual sunshine and its glorious climate, and "where the poorest live in abundance."

"Thy satin vesture richer is than looms
Of Orient weave for raiment of her kings;
Not dyes of olden Tyre, not precious things
Regathered from the long-forgotten tombs
Of buried empires, not the Iris plumes
That wave upon the tropic's myriad wings,
Not all proud Sheba's queenly offerings,
Could match the golden marvel of thy blooms."

—Ina D. Coolbrith.

O Golden Poppy, Eschscholtzia, Flame Flower, La Amapola, Copa de Oro! You are all one and the same. Born under cloudless sky; child of the summer sun and earth's unmined gold; inimitable; sans story, sans art, sans poetry, sans perfume, sans all, save thy golden glory—we love you!

The accompanying illustration, representing the evolution of the Golden Poppy, from bud to full flower, was drawn by Miss Arlie B. Stone, of San Francisco.

MINERAL DEVELOPMENT OF CALIFORNIA.

By FLETCHER MCN. HAMILTON, State Mineralogist.

Civilization is directly dependent upon mining and the mineral products. California has the greatest store of mineral wealth of any state in the Union. This is shown by the fact that although it is a thinly populated state, having but fifteen people to the square mile, its present annual output of minerals is over $100,000,000, and California is out-ranked by only four other states who have many times the number of people to the square mile than we have. There is ample indication that future developments will disclose mineral resources that are now scarcely thought of by the ordinary person.

The early history of California is synonymous with the early history of mining in California. The discovery and development of the marvelous gold deposits and the ease with which this golden wealth was accumulated, accounts for the rapid growth of agricultural and industrial activities. In merely three years after the important discovery of gold at Sutter's Mill there had been won from the earth over one hundred million dollars.

It is wonderful to relate that, with the advancement and growth of the State of California, and with the demands and necessity for the numerous mineral products used in the various arts and industries of a complex civilization, the natural resources within the confines of our State have been discovered and developed to such an extent that we can supply practically all our needs.

California today produces on a commercial basis over forty different rocks and minerals.

Mineral deposits are known in every one of our fifty-eight counties, and all but two counties have a commercial output.

Petroleum is the mineral product which looms largest in a summary of mineral resources. During 1914 the record production of 105,000,000 barrels was attained, valued at $49,000,000. This industry has been almost entirely developed within the last fifteen years. It is not confined to a monopoly as many suppose. There are some three hundred companies engaged in the production of oil which is purchased and marketed by four or five large concerns having thousands of miles of pipe lines and many tank steamers touching various Pacific ports. The future supply of oil is so large that even a conservative estimate would appear absurd; however, it should be borne in mind that when the oil is taken from the ground it is exhausted, and, therefore, particular consideration must be given to methods of conservation.

Competition among producers has been so keen that more oil is produced every year than is needed and the amount going into storage is constantly increasing until we at present have almost 60,000,000 barrels stored above the ground. Lack of co-operation among producers has therefore prevented them from obtaining as large a profit as they should. However, the general public has profited to such an extent that even electric power generated by water falling through pipes down our steep mountain slopes into hydro-electric power stations, in many places, can not compete with power generated from oil fuel. The inferior grade and small number of coal deposits in California makes our abundant supply of fuel oil of even greater importance. With practically no co-operation producers of oil received about $5,000,000 in dividends during 1914.

Gold is responsible for the remarkably fast development of California in that the great quantities early discovered in the State quickly drew many hardy pioneers within our borders. During 1914 over $21,000,000 in gold was produced, this bringing the total gold production of California to well over $1,600,000,000. Creditable estimates show that nearly as much gold bearing gravel channels were profitably worked by the hydraulic method, but as it was claimed that the silt carried down from hydraulic mines was rapidly damaging our navigable streams and agricultural lands, legislation was enacted whereby the hydraulic mining industry was regulated to the point of strangulation. This branch of the mineral industry deserves particular attention and investigation in order that due consideration be given and facts will be shown that this enormous amount of metal wealth can be devoted to the use of mankind, not only without undue injury to other industries, but can be directed to be of particular benefit to them.

The deposits of gold ore have been bountifully distributed by nature and our present production comes from not less than thirty-two counties, a little over one-half being taken out from deep mines and the remainder from placer deposits, chiefly won through dredging operations. During the present year considerable development work has taken place upon old properties which had been idle for many years, and in many cases this resumption of work has already resulted in profit, and proven the persistence of our great ore-bearing zones. As gold is a product that is always marketable, the conditions resultant from the European war will undoubtedly exhilarate this work on old deposits, and many opportunities only await intelligent development in order to be placed among our best producers.

Nearly every constructive work of civilization now depends upon the use of cement, of which California produces annually some $7,000,000 worth, from seven separate plants which afford employment to over three thousand men.

As with our other mineral resources, those making up cement are widely distributed over the State. Another striking instance of the fact that we are only beginning to develop in a mineral way is that this enormous industry has been developed almost entirely within the last twenty-five years. A further increase of this industry is only limited by the needs of the territory commercially tributary to the Pacific slope. Many undeveloped deposits of lime and limestone exist within the State.

Electricity, which has become such an important factor in our every-day life, would be comparatively worthless if it were not for the availability of copper from which a large portion of transmission lines are constructed, and electrical machinery made. Not less than seventeen counties annually contribute to our copper output and there are over sixty producing concerns. During 1914 there was produced about $3,500,000 worth of copper, and only the interruption of the foreign war prevented this figure from equaling that of 1913, which was over $5,000,000. It is almost unnecessary to call attention to the fact that this metal, like so many of our other mineral resources, is also widely distributed over the State and controlled by no monopolistic concerns.

The exploitation and development of our copper resources has been considerably handicapped in recent years by the activities of the so-called "smoke farmers" against the copper smelters. There is no doubt but that in the past, when no effort was made to control the smelter fumes, great damage was done. But since the regulation and control of these fumes has been required and carried out there seems to have been no material damage inflicted, and it is to be hoped that in the light of an exhaustive investigation and report by an arbitration commission appointed in the case of Solano County against the Selby smelter, which was favorable to the smelter, that there will be engendered a feeling of community spirit between the smelters and farmers. When such methods are applied to all the rest of such problems, the State of California will profit immeasurably thereby.

Because of the economic conditions brought about through the European war and the probability of the United States being forced to rely upon its own mineral resources, and because this country is a potential producer of almost every mineral substance used in the industrial world, the possibilities of future development can be foreseen. A brief review of the subject reveals the fact that in several instances California is the sole source of domestic supply, and with but few exceptions this State contains deposits of every mineral produced elsewhere in the United States.

Seventy-five per cent of the quicksilver produced in the United States comes from California. One of the important uses of quicksilver is in the manufacture of fulminate for explosive caps. Another important use is in various electrical equipment. The war caused a very rapid rise in the price of this commodity which stimulated activity during the latter part of 1914, and the total production will be valued at about $750,000. There are over twenty producing mines scattered through eight counties. Innumerable undeveloped prospects are known to exist.

Magnesite is a mineral which affords considerable opportunity for future development. Reports of actual production have been received from twenty-four different properties located in four counties. One of the uses which has caused it to be particularly noticed recently is in building operations. It is used in making plastic material for flooring, tiling, wainscoting, artificial marble, paint and fire-proofing. Some notable examples of the use of this mineral will be seen at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, where some 5,000 square feet of magnesite flooring is in use. It is curious to note that although California is the only State in the Union which has produced magnesite, and although there are many large deposits of it here, there have been considerable imports of foreign magnesite landed at our very doors. It is inconceivable that such a condition can long prevail.

Chromic iron ore is another mineral widely distributed over California, being produced in a small way in four different counties. Since the completion of the Panama Canal there is no reason why this industry should not increase considerably. Some of the extensive uses of this material are for refractory furnace linings in steel and allied industries. It is also used as an alloy in making high-grade steels. The interruption of trade by the European war has served to stimulate an investigation along this line, and the advantage of cheap freight through the Panama Canal will undoubtedly tend to overcome the previous tendency of American users to depend upon Rhodesia and New Caledonia for our supply.

Tungsten is another mineral used largely in the steel industry and also as a filament in electric light bulbs. The industry has rapidly grown since its inception in 1905 until the normal production is at present worth about $250,000. There is reason to expect that this industry will also expand.

Iron ore has played so prominent a part in all of the other states that exceed California in mineral output, that it is reasonable to inquire as to our iron resources. There are large amounts of iron ore in California, but in the past the reduction of such ores has always depended upon a cheap supply of coking coal. However, with our great supply of petroleum and the experiments that are being carried on with electric smelting, it would indeed be a bold prophet to make a statement that our iron resources will never be of importance to California.

Building stones of many varieties are found distributed throughout the State in sufficient quantities to meet any need that can well be imagined, and many buildings throughout the State already serve as testimonials of its utility. Sandstone alone is annually produced to a value of about $500,000. San Francisco itself shows in many of its finest buildings the use of California building stones, especially the sandstones and granites.

Asbestos is a mineral that is commonly known to everyone and occurs in many localities in California. However, the production of asbestos has never been important in the past and the United States has depended almost entirely upon the Canadian deposits. New uses are being found for asbestos, particularly in building operations, as it has been discovered that asbestos wall plaster renders the wall impervious to heat and also does away with the echo which is undesirable in many buildings. The asbestos pulp has been mixed with cement and magnesite for roofing and flooring with very satisfactory results. There is no doubt but that this industry can be expanded by the proper application of energy.

Clay deposits are at present worked in fourteen different counties of the State. With our fuel oil supply and with the growing population and industrial development of California, it is only a matter of time until the pottery and clay products industry will be of much greater magnitude. Even at the present time we have a considerable number of potteries and brick manufacturing plants from one end of the State to the other. But the new uses to which such products are being put, and even the new products themselves assures a much larger growth of this important mineral branch.

Potash is a mineral which has become of national and even international importance. Up to the present time the principal production has come from Germany where the government has maintained monopolistic conditions in order that their natural resources should not be depleted at a loss to its own citizens and a gain to foreign countries. During the past few years prospecting has been done by our Federal government in search of potash deposits which might obviate the necessity of depending upon foreign countries for this very important fertilizer. California now bids fair to become an important producer of potash, there having been erected a large plant at Searles Lake in Kern County. This so-called lake is similar to many of the other playas of the desert portion of America.

In the desert regions the natural depressions frequently have no outlet and as the minerals of the surrounding hills have been worn down by erosion or dissolved out by the occasional rainfall, the water carries such soluble minerals to the lake bed. The water soon evaporated and finally we have the concentration of various salts.

Another of the desert saline products is borax which unlike potash, has already been well developed and our annual production is worth about $1,500,000. California is the only State in the Union producing borax. Our deposits supply various foreign countries, and offer another striking illustration of the possibilities of mineral development in California.

It has been recently brought home with great force to the American people that we have an inadequate supply of chemical manufacturing plants. Many persons have recently found that since the German supply has been cut off, common articles, involving chemical products, have been raised greatly in price or are not to be obtained. This knowledge will be a distinct gain to America, and particularly to California where we have nearly, if not all of the raw materials necessary for chemical manufacture, and application of capital and close research may be expected to place California in an enviable position as to a chemical producer.

A crude start in the chemical industry has already been made, and one of the products is sulphuric acid, the pyrites from which it is made alone being annually valued at about $250,000.

Even when it comes to mineral waters California stands forth pre-eminently. The waters with all their beneficial and medicinal qualities are here and the possibilities of making California world famous for her mineral springs can not be exaggerated.

The foregoing gives briefly some idea of the magnitude of the mineral industry in this State.

With the conditions of the import business affected as they are by the war in Europe, with the Eastern markets opened by the Panama Canal, and with many of the natural resources at hand ready to be used, there does not seem to be any reasonable doubt as to the possibilities of growth in this great basic industry.

The following table shows the annual yield of the mineral products in the State of California for the year 1913, compiled from returns received by the State Mining Bureau, being the latest complete annual data at this date.

Bulletin 68, giving the complete mineral statistics for 1913, will be furnished upon request.

The State Mining Bureau, located on the third floor of the Ferry Building, San Francisco, is supported by biennial appropriations from the Legislature and aims to foster development of the mineral resources of the State. The results of its investigations are at the service of the public. A museum containing some 20,000 mineral specimens is constantly open to the public and visited by thousands of interested persons. There is a library containing some 5,000 volumes of selected works dealing with the mineral industry. There is a laboratory where rock specimens are identified free of charge, and such information as can readily be had is given to any persons sending or bringing samples. The statistical department annually sends out requests to all owners of mineral properties and issues an annual report which is distributed free of charge, fully enumerating our mineral productions. A corps of trained engineers has been employed in the past two years in reporting upon the mines and mineral resources of the State, which reports will be available to those interested in the mineral development of the State.

Duties of the Court.

Decisions of contested cases in the collection of customs duties have been in great confusion for several years. It has been exceedingly difficult for the law officers of the Government to obtain consistent interpretations of the various provisions of the tariff law as applied to specific articles. It is believed that by concentrating the responsibility for deciding such cases in a single judicial body much of the confusion that arises from these variations of interpretation will be removed. The new court will decide all contested cases without appeal, except on questions of constitutionality.

The act establishing the court provides as follows:

The said Court of Customs Appeals shall always be open for the transaction of business, and sessions thereof may, in the discretion of the court, be held by the said court in the several judicial circuits, and at such places as said court may from time to time designate. * * * The said court shall organize and open for the transaction of business in the city of Washington, D. C., within ninety days after the judges, or a majority of them, shall have qualified.

*Two contests.

Employees of the California State Printing Office, in Capitol Park. State Capitol Building in the Background.

CALIFORNIA'S STATE PRINTING OFFICE.

This department, under State control, was created by an act of the Legislature, January 8, 1850, and provided that the State Printer should be elected by the legislature for a term of two years. The first State Printer was Henry H. Robinson and during the following thirty-seven years eighteen Printers held the position, with the exception of two years when the work was let by contract, which proved unsatisfactory. In 1887, John D. Young was appointed by the Governor, followed in 1891 by Alfred J. Johnston, who was also appointed. The latter was elected to the position in 1895, as was also Wm. W. Shannon in January, 1903. Mr. Shannon held the position until November, 1911, when he was succeeded by Friend W. Richardson, who was appointed under the law making the position again appointive. On January 1, 1915, Robert L. Telfer, the present Superintendent of State Printing, who had served three years as Deputy in the department, was appointed by Governor Hiram W. Johnson.

The State Printing Office is situated in Capitol Park, Sacramento, in a frame three-story building and not well adapted to modern manufacturing methods. During the past several sessions, the legislature has been asked for a new building, but greater needs, in our fast growing state, for hospitals, etc., have prevented the appropriation. State Printer Telfer asserts that he could show a reduction in costs, with a better adapted building to pay for a new structure inside a period of four years. The matter will again be brought before the 1917 legislature and the needs of the department strongly impressed.

The plant consists of three departments: composing room, pressroom and bindery. In the composing room fourteen linotypes form a battery capable of turning out work in large quantities. A good display of type is also on hand in the job department. The pressroom has eight large Miehle presses, equipped with Dexter feeders; one pony; one automatic and four platens. The bindery has a good line of fairly modern equipment, consisting of four folders, four Smythe sewers, a large gatherer, compressor, casing-in machine, case-maker, wire stitchers, stamps, etc.

(This issue of the Blue Book, on account of delayed copy,

The equipment is valued at about $150,000. The number of employees ranges from about 125 to nearly a hundred additional in rush legislative periods. The wages paid are the same as for similar work in the larger cities of the coast.

When the State took up the manufacture and sale of school books at cost, the price to the school children of the State was reduced approximately sixty per cent. The free text book amendment was approved by the people of the State in 1911, and the distribution under this system commenced in January, 1912. Under the administration of Governor Johnson the cost of the manufacture of school books was reduced forty per cent over the former administrations. During the past two fiscal years, over a million textbooks have been issued annually. The present cost of manufacture of the entire set of twenty-three books used in the grammar grades is $3.0865; the royalty for text amounts to $1.51, the net cost being $4.60.

The total business of the plant amounts to nearly a quarter of a million dollars annually; only work for the state departments is handled and all work is billed at cost. The success attained in the publication of school books, by the California State Printing Office, has brought the attention of many other states to the feasibility and economy of this plan. The question of also including the state publication of high school books is growing in public favor. State Printer Robert Telfer states that, under a similar method of distribution successfully followed in the common schools, the high school students could also secure the benefits of state publication.
